- According to Wallethub, Salt Lake City ranks 7th among the best U.S. cities for STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) jobs, beating out Chicago, New York City, San Jose, and other prominent "tech forward" towns.

Draper Station

Vista Station is located directly across from FrontRunner (Mass Transit Train) Platform

WHAT'S THE POINT?

Utah's Point of the Mountain also known as "Silicon Slopes" refers to the cluster of information technology, software development, hardware manufacturing and research firms that have emerged along the Wasatch Front. Utah is nationally recognized as a leading technology hub. In fact, the demand for workers among the growing list of tech companies is out-pacing the supply of the Utah workforce.

Utah is ranked #1 one in innovation and entrepreneurship, #2 in high-tech performance, and #3 in economic performance by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation.

Tech companies have flocked to Utah for its lower taxes, more flexible regulatory environment, and a well-educated, multilingual workforce. There is a strong mixture of local homegrown startups (Domo, Ancestry, Qualtrics, Pluralsight, etc.), as well as major Fortune 500 companies (Adobe, Microsoft, Oracle, Symantec, etc.)
