

An aerial night photograph of a city street corner. A large, multi-story building with a distinctive pyramidal roof is the central focus. The building's facade is a mix of light-colored panels and dark window bands. To the left, another tall building with a grid-like window pattern is visible. The foreground shows a busy intersection with long-exposure light trails from cars in orange and red. Pedestrian crossings, trees, and streetlights are also visible. The sky is a deep blue with a hint of sunset colors on the right.
