CITY OVERVIEW

About Chehalis

The cities of Chehalis and Centralia are located on the west side of Lewis County. This is a vibrant and growing area. The two cities are centrally located between Seattle and Portland, yet each town has their distinct personalities. Chehalis offers a quaint downtown, the bright and active Penny Park, museums and is the eastern starting point for Willapa Trail that winds along a former railroad track to the coast. Centralia is home to Centralia Community College, an historic downtown, and Borst Park.

The towns are surrounded by farmland and forests offering a respite from urban life yet still an easy commute to Olympia.

Doing Business in Chehalis

Low business costs and easy access to Interstate 5 and major transportation hubs make this region a dynamic location for business. Chehalis' focus on workforce development, along with close proximity to colleges and universities, provides qualified employees. Paired with a high quality of life, and lower cost of living, this region in Lewis county is a great place to live, work, and grow.
