Place Alexis Nihon

Completed in 1967, Place Alexis-Nihon, was designed by renowned Montreal architect Dimitri Dimakopolous, who played a critical role in the design of Montreal landmarks such as Place Ville Marie, 1000 de la Gauchetiere, Place des Arts and others. The site on which Place Alexis-Nihon currently sits was once home to the Montreal Royals baseball team until the year 1927. The project was commissioned by pioneering local Real Estate developer Alexis Nihon who was also responsible for founding the eponymous REIT. The building is a fantastic option for office users all of sizes and industries, with Tower 1 catering to a more enterprise clientele due to its large, rectangular floor plates whereas Tower 2 features a unique octagonal layout which allows for some dynamic space planning.
