The Barker

"A SANCTUARY FOR VISIONARIES AND INNOVATORS"

In a world that increasingly lacks environments essential to inspiration, well-being and productivity, our quest is to create an alternative – A nine-story village and cultural center for innovators, business leaders, and artists focused on inspiring work, self-care, and creative endeavors. The Barker is a platform that offers quality spaces, food and facilities for a wide array of industries and experiences.

The Barker building, located in Los Angeles' legendary theatre district, opened its doors in 1909 to house a furniture store – featuring music and art performances as part of an immersive experience. This Beaux-arts landmark has been thoughtfully repaired and restored, inviting a new generation of creators into an atmosphere rich with history, purpose and possibility.

A grand central staircase, a viewing gallery, and the original art nouveau features shape the experience in this historic space, once home to furniture displays and performances. The self-contained mezzanine, with ceilings soaring over 20 feet, boasts more than a century of history, and its faded grandeur gives visitors a glimpse into the past. This floor is designed to effortlessly host an array of activities such as fashion shows, performances, private events, filming, and more.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Broadway once hosted the highest concentration of movie palaces on the planet. At its peak in the early 1900s, 80% of the world's movies were shot in California, which contributed to Los Angeles becoming the entertainment capital of the world. To this day, legendary venues such as Chaplin's United Artists Theatre, the Los Angeles Theatre, and The Orpheum, currently managed by Live Nation, are some of the cultural cornerstones of this historic neighborhood.

With highly respected companies such as Apple, Spotify, Warner Music, and Adidas local to the district, there has probably never been a more interesting moment for Downtown Los Angeles.

Within close proximity to The Barker, well-established hotels such as Proper, Soho House, and Hoxton Hotel have recently opened. There is also a wide offering of high-quality restaurants such as Bavel, Bestia, and Manuela, making the area a dynamic dining scene.
