KAPOLEI HAWAII AT A GLANCE

Kapolei, located on Oahu’s south shore about 25 miles west of downtown Honolulu, is emerging as a prime location for business and development. Once an agricultural area known for its sugarcane and pineapple production, Kapolei has transformed into a thriving urban center, often referred to as Oahu’s “Second City.” With a population of over 15,000 and a median age of 34, the town is experiencing rapid growth, with projections indicating a population increase of nearly 64% over the next two decades. The region’s economic prospects are equally promising, with jobs expected to double in the next 20 years. Strategically situated near major transportation routes, including the H-1 Freeway, Kapolei offers easy access to the Daniel K. Inouye International Airport and is surrounded by beautiful landscapes like the Waianae mountain range and the Waianae Coast. As development continues, Kapolei is poised to become a major business hub, attracting investment and fostering economic growth on the island of Oahu.
