The County is bordered on the west by the panhandle of West Virginia, the north by Beaver County, northeast of Allegheny and Westmoreland Counties, and south/south east of Greene and Fayette Counties. The city of Washington and the County of Washington were both named after the American Revolutionary War leader George Washington in 1781. CHARLEROI

Charleroi is a historic borough in Washington County, Pennsylvania situated approximately 25 miles south of Pittsburgh along the Monongahela River. Established in the late 19th century as a major glass manufacturing hub, Charleroi earned recognition as part of the region's once-thriving industrial corridor and continues to benefit from its strategic riverfront location and proximity to key transportation routes, including Interstate 70 and PA Route 88. Today, the borough serves as a regional commercial center for the surrounding Mon Valley communities, supported by a mix of local businesses, retail corridors, and light industrial users. Its accessibility to the greater Pittsburgh metropolitan area, combined with ongoing revitalization efforts and affordable real estate fundamentals, positions Charleroi as an attractive market for investment and redevelopment opportunities within Southwestern Pennsylvania.
