AMENITIES

LIVINGSTON

Livingston is a growing Central Valley community that blends small-town appeal with strategic regional connectivity. Situated along Highway 99 in northern Merced County, Livingston offers convenient access to major employment hubs in Merced, Turlock, and Modesto while maintaining an affordable cost of living and a relaxed pace of life. The city features established neighborhoods, expanding residential development, local retail and dining options, and essential services that support families, professionals, and businesses alike. With steady population growth, a strong agricultural backbone, and proximity to education, logistics, and healthcare centers, Livingston presents a compelling environment for long-term living, investment, and community-focused growth.

HISTORY & CULTURE

Founded in the early 1900s as a railroad and farming town, Livingston's history is deeply tied to agriculture, particularly dairy and crop production. Over time, the city has evolved into one of the most culturally diverse communities in the region, with a rich mix of traditions reflected in its local businesses, food, festivals, and community life. This diversity gives Livingston a vibrant, close-knit character that continues to shape its identity today.

RECREATION

Livingston offers a relaxed lifestyle with access to parks, schools, and community facilities, while also serving as a gateway to outdoor recreation throughout the Central Valley. Residents enjoy nearby walking trails, sports fields, and family parks, along with easy day-trip access to Yosemite National Park, regional lakes, and surrounding countryside—providing ample opportunities for hiking, camping, and outdoor exploration year-round.

ECONOMY & INDUSTRY

Livingston's economy is deeply rooted in agriculture, which continues to drive local employment and business opportunities. The region is known for dairy farming, crop production, and related agri-businesses, supporting a network of processing facilities, distribution centers, and farm supply companies. In addition to agriculture, Livingston is experiencing growth in small-scale manufacturing, retail, and service industries that cater to the needs of its diverse population. Its location along Highway 99 and proximity to major Central Valley cities also make it an attractive hub for logistics, transportation, and light industrial operations. This blend of traditional and emerging industries provides a stable economic base while creating opportunities for new investment and entrepreneurship.
