GERMANTOWN

Germantown is celebrated as one of Nashville's most vibrant urban neighborhoods, known for its unique blend of historic charm and modern sophistication. The area is characterized by its beautifully restored Victorian buildings and brick-paved streets, which provide a distinctive and inviting atmosphere. Situated just a mile or two from the heart of downtown Nashville, Germantown boasts exceptional centrality, which not only enriches the local lifestyle but also presents a prime opportunity for hospitality ventures. This site ensures easy access to major attractions, business hubs, and cultural landmarks, making it an ideal setting for businesses aiming to capitalize on both local charm and high foot traffic.

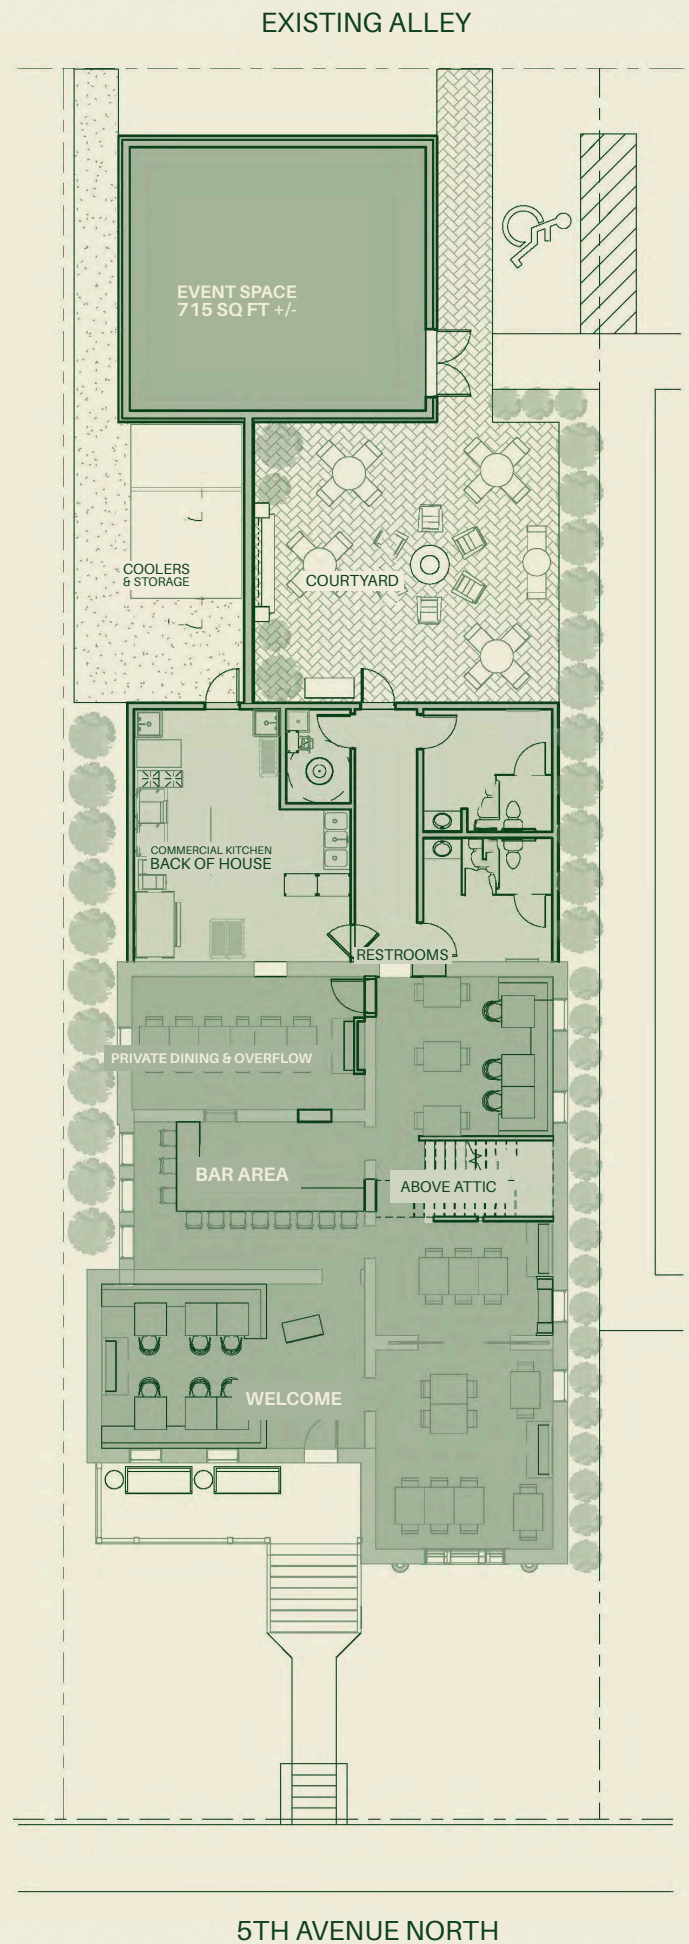

OPPORTUNITY

The current historic home features 2,556 square feet of leasable space, plus a 576-square-foot detached garage. After renovation, the home will expand to 3,621 square feet and include a 715-square-foot event space. Additionally, the property will feature a 730-square-foot courtyard. The space will be delivered in vanilla box condition, allowing you to bring your vision to life. You can choose to follow the proposed plans or customize the layout to suit your needs.

GERMANTOWN

HISTORY OF THE PROPERTY

Seen above is the original neighborhood plan from the late 1800's. The McGavock family's farm was parceled to create the D.L. McGavock development, now known as Germantown. The "Race Course" seen on the right portion of the map hosted the Peyton Stakes horse races. This spot is now Marker 8 in the Historical Commission of Metropolitan Nashville. You will also see that 5th Avenue isn't listed as the street was formerly known as Summer Street.

In 1920, Albert Vaughn purchased the property from the D.L. McGavock Estate. He was a prominent businessman and merchant in the city. He operated Meader, Vaughn, and Halloran Fish Market out of the Market House which is now the Ben West Courthouse next to the James Robertson Parkway Bridge. He sold ice and fresh fish straight from the Cumberland River.

The home continued to pass hands until the 80's where it became a part of the London family. The London family was one of prominence in Nashville as well. Dolores "Dee" London was a beloved professor at Fisk University and her husband, Hillard "Jack" London was a councilman for the city of Nashville for 8 years. He was involved in his community and the annual Jack London Christmas Toy and Coat Drive is still held in Germantown each year.

City Pioneer, Merchant Dies

Albert Vaughn, 84, pioneer businessman of Nashville, who intimates assert, probably knew more of the history of Middle Tennessee and its colorful characters than many historians, died at 4 o'clock Saturday morning at his home, 1315 Fifth Avenue, North, after an illness of a week.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at John C. Roesch Funeral Home. Burial will be in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Vaughn was operator of Meaders, Vaughn and Halloran Fish Market in the old Market House for more than 60 years—from December 1875, until the late '30s, and he could tell many tales about the old days.

It was in 1875 when Mr. Vaughn became a member of the then-thriving firm of Andrew Meaders and I. K. Osgood, dealers in ice and fresh Cumberland River fish. In 1893 at the death of Mr. Osgood, he had prospered to such a degree that he bought out the business and formed the corporation of Meaders, Vaughn and Halloran. In 1928, Mr. Meaders died, leaving Mr. Vaughn the only original firm member. When they tore down the old Market House, Mr. Vaughn moved his stall to the new one where he continued in business for about six years when he sold out to Atlantic Ice and Coal Company, and retired from business.

Mr. Vaughn was born and reared in Nashville, son of a pioneer steamboat captain, James Vaughn, who piloted on the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers for many years.

Mr. Vaughn was a member of the First Lutheran Church.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ollie L. Smith; two sons, Albert A. Vaughn and Lawrence Vaughn, all of Nashville.
