A wide-angle photograph of a modern clothing store interior. The space is bright and minimalist, with white walls and a light-colored floor. Track lighting is installed on the ceiling, illuminating the area. On the left and right sides, there are long racks of clothing, primarily in dark colors like black and grey, with some bright red items on the right. In the center, there are white display tables and more clothing racks. A few people are visible in the background, browsing the store. The overall atmosphere is clean and contemporary.
