Centro Cultural Inmigrante, located on the West 206th Street side of the building, is a new 20,000-square-foot performing arts center in Inwood dedicated to amplifying New York City's diverse immigrant stories through theater, music, dance, film, and community programming.

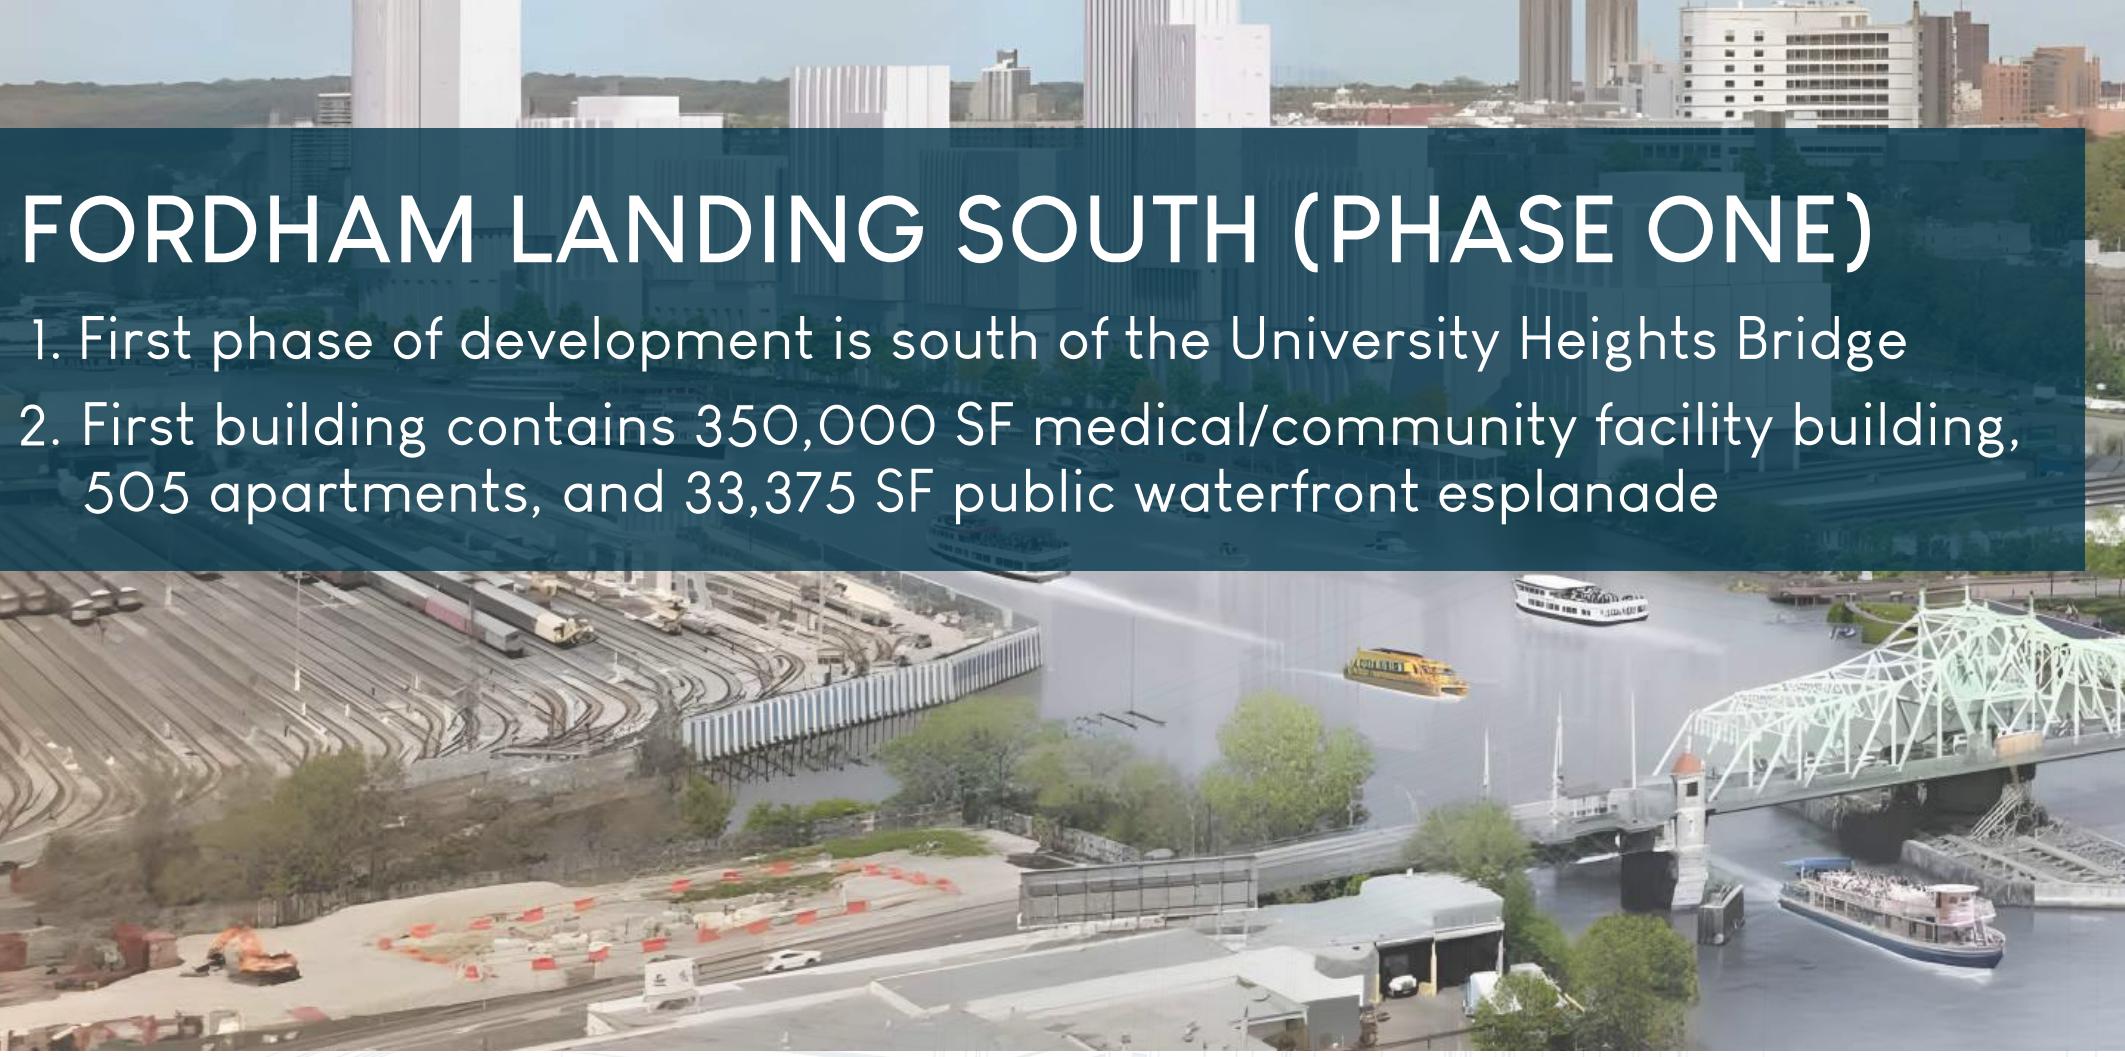

Scheduled to open in 2026, the center will host performances, classes, and daily cultural events throughout the week. Its presence directly adjacent to the retail space positions the property to benefit from thousands of new visitors, creating recurring surges of foot traffic before and after performances, along with consistent daytime activity from artists, staff, and students utilizing the facility.

Backed in part by Lin-Manuel Miranda and the Miranda Family Fund, The People's Theatre will be the largest Latine theater in New York City and the first Dominican-managed cultural institution of its kind. The flexible mainstage will seat approximately 200 guests per show and is projected to serve more than 28,000 audience members annually.

As a major cultural anchor, the venue is expected to attract residents from across Upper Manhattan as well as visitors from other boroughs, creating a built-in customer base for food, beverage, convenience, and experiential retail. The theater will also extend evening and weekend activity along the block, reinforcing the corridor as a growing cultural and commercial destination.
