PROPERTY SUMMARY

PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

2311–2317 Orange Avenue presents a rare opportunity to acquire a versatile industrial asset in the tightly held Signal Hill submarket. This freestanding $\pm 5,000$ SF building sits on a $\pm 10,745$ SF lot and offers flexible Light Industrial (LI) zoning suitable for a wide range of industrial and commercial uses. The property features clear-span interiors, generous ceiling heights, and three grade-level roll-up doors, supporting efficient warehousing, distribution, or operational needs. A secure fenced yard and ample on-site parking further enhance functionality for users with vehicles, equipment, or outdoor storage needs.

Ideally located near the Port of Long Beach, Downtown Long Beach, and major transportation arteries including the 405, 710, and 605 Freeways, the site offers exceptional connectivity across Southern California. With limited availability of small industrial buildings in this supply-constrained market, 2311–2317 Orange Avenue is an excellent fit for an owner-user or investor seeking long-term value in a high-demand industrial corridor.

CITY INFORMATION

LOCATION DESCRIPTION

Centrally located in the heart of the South Bay industrial corridor, Signal Hill is a highly strategic and well-connected submarket within Los Angeles County. Entirely surrounded by the City of Long Beach, Signal Hill offers exceptional access to major freeways including the 405, 710, and 605, as well as close proximity to the Port of Long Beach, Long Beach Airport, and the Alameda Corridor rail line—making it a prime location for industrial, logistics, and service-oriented users. The city's compact footprint, pro-business governance, and logistical connectivity have made it a sought-after destination for a wide range of industrial users, from construction and trade contractors to light manufacturing and last-mile operators.

Signal Hill's industrial backbone is supported by favorable zoning and land use policies. Nearly 40% of the city's land is designated for industrial use, reflecting its long-standing commitment to supporting business growth and employment-generating development. With limited land availability in surrounding Long Beach and much of the South Bay experiencing record-low vacancy, Signal Hill presents a rare opportunity for businesses seeking functional space in a centralized location. The city has actively identified opportunity areas for infill development and redevelopment, particularly on underutilized parcels that can accommodate modern industrial or flex users.

Beyond logistics and infrastructure, Signal Hill benefits from a forward-looking economic development strategy that encourages high-quality design, improved site functionality, and enhanced curb appeal—an attractive environment for businesses that maintain equipment yards, vehicle fleets, or outdoor storage. The city is known for streamlined permitting, low business taxes, and minimal utility surcharges, contributing to reduced operating costs when compared to other urbanized areas of Los Angeles County.

The surrounding labor pool is another key advantage. With close access to Long Beach, Lakewood, Carson, and the broader LA/OC labor basin, Signal Hill draws from a diverse and skilled workforce ideal for industrial, construction, and service-based industries. Demand for space continues to be strong, with a consistent track record of rising lease rates, strong user absorption, and investor interest across both stabilized assets and redevelopment sites.

In summary, Signal Hill offers a rare combination of location, flexibility, and business-friendly governance that continues to attract a wide array of industrial users. For companies seeking a centralized base of operations with access to major transportation networks and an established industrial ecosystem, Signal Hill remains one of the most compelling small-city industrial markets in Southern California.
