

What is Coworking?

Coworking is a space that combines the freedom of working for yourself with the community and creativity of a traditional job. It is a place meant to help you connect with others and invigorate your imagination.

Why does Stillwater need a coworking center? It is estimated within the next few years, 80% of the workforce will be location independent workers meaning they work remotely from a place of their choosing. While this comes with a lot of perks such as not having to live in a certain place or commute, it often leads to loneliness and distractions. There is a lack of affordable office space, especially downtown where we really want to be. Reliable space for face to face, private meetings is also hard to find. So what will our solution of building a coworking community solve? Members of a coworking center report feeling more focused, creative, healthier and more confident. It is a creative place where professionalism meets affordability.
