San Diego County is the second busiest region in the country when it comes to converting traditional office space to life science labs due to the demand for life science space.

Over 55% of North County's adult-aged residents (25-64 years old) have a bachelor's degree or higher, and North County's central coast is one of the most educated in the nation. This highly talented and educated pool of nearby employees and innovators, coupled with the affordability compared to other competitive markets, make Carlsbad and the Bressi Ranch area a uniquely superb life science hub.

North County

North County continues to grow into a robust, vibrant, and increasingly independent economic region. North County's employment growth is above that of the rest of the country and the state which suggests that inward investment is increasingly identifying North County as a place to successfully grow one's business and find quality talent—making it its own independent economy. This means the region's economy reflects the unique conditions and factors that are somewhat independent of activities and events to the south. Similarly, the North County office market is less dependent on the leasing decisions of large business service firms, and more driven by smaller startups and smaller professional service companies.
