Welcome to

CAMP DOUGLAS, WISCONSIN

Camp Douglas is a small town located in Juneau County, Wisconsin, United States. As of the 2020 census, the population of the town was 1,453.

Camp Douglas is situated in the rolling hills and forests of central Wisconsin, and it is surrounded by natural beauty. The town is located near several bodies of water, including the Lemonweir River, which provides opportunities for fishing, kayaking, and canoeing.

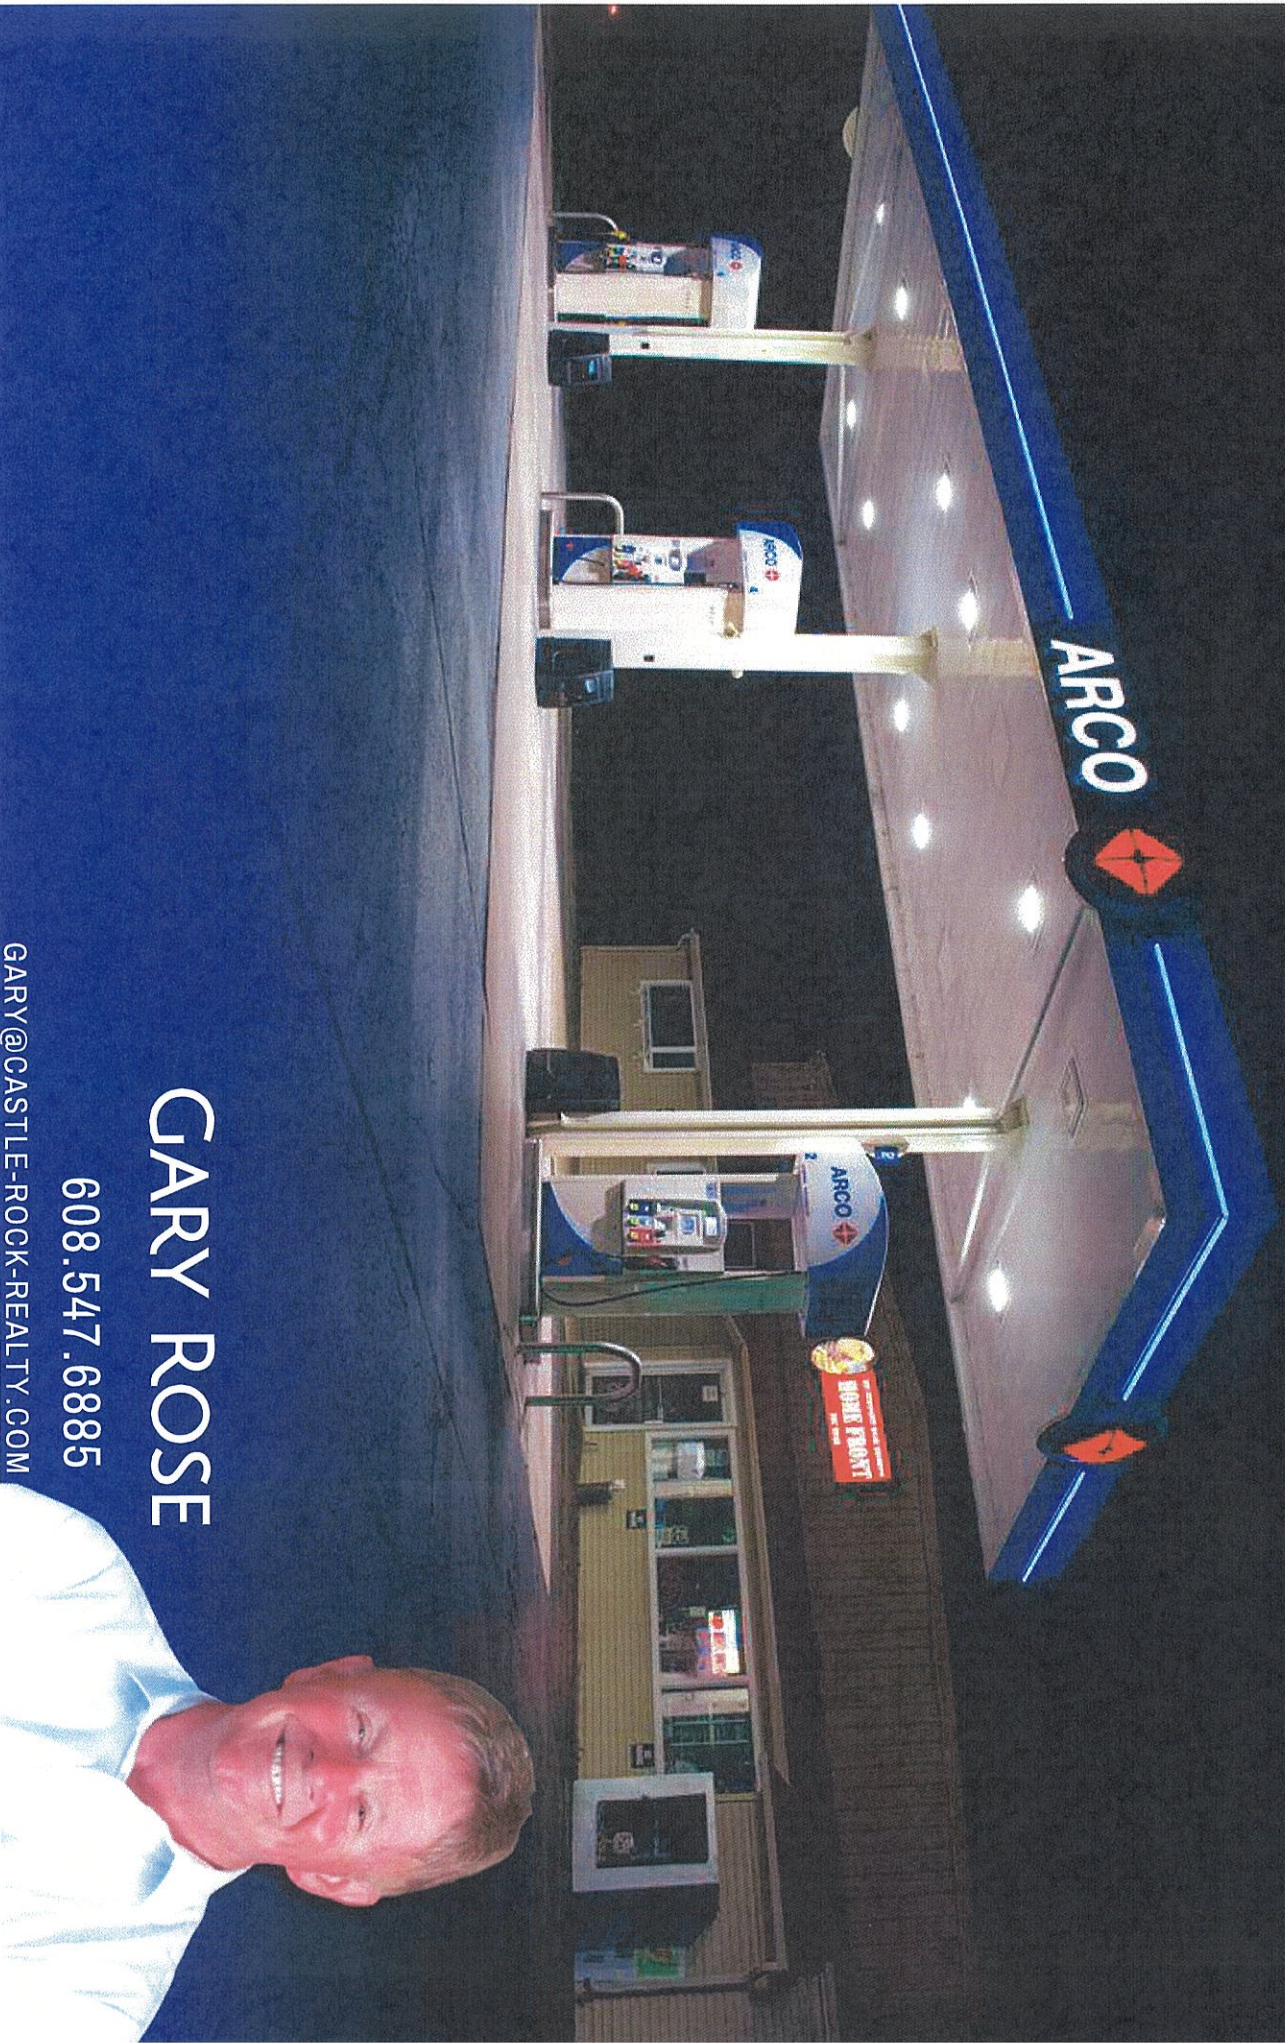

Historically, Camp Douglas was established as a military base during the Civil War. The base was used to train and supply Union soldiers, and it was an important hub for troops heading to and from the front lines. Today, the town has a small museum dedicated to the history of the base and the role it played during the war.

In addition to its historical significance, Camp Douglas is also known for its vibrant community and local events. The town hosts an annual festival, known as Camp Douglas Railroad Days, which celebrates the town's railroad heritage with a parade, carnival rides, live music, and more.

Overall, Camp Douglas is a charming small town with a rich history and natural beauty that is well worth a visit.
