The Opportunity

Positioned within the I-10 Corridor, one of the most concentrated semiconductor and advanced manufacturing clusters in the West, 6409 W. Commonwealth Place offers a rare opportunity to acquire an infill industrial asset in a submarket defined by sustained corporate investment and limited available product. The ±48,106 SF building sits on ±4.4 acres with heavy power infrastructure, I-2 zoning, and a ±1.5-acre yard, a combination increasingly difficult to replicate as land within the corridor tightens. Direct access to Loop 202 and I-10 connects the site to the full Phoenix MSA, anchored by Chandler's deep semiconductor, electronics, and advanced manufacturing labor pool and supply chain.

The existing improvements are configured to support specialized manufacturing, offering an in-place foundation of heavy power, structural capacity, and yard utility that adapts to a range of industrial uses. For owner-users, the building delivers immediate functionality in a market where comparable infill assets with yard rarely come available. For value-add investors and developers, the asset presents a defensible basis in one of Phoenix's most supply-constrained industrial corridors, with optionality to reposition, redevelop or hold for long-term appreciation as the I-10 Corridor continues to expand.
