A HISTORIC Estate

Step into Kentucky history at The Johnston's Inn, located at 1975 Georgetown Road in charming Paris, KY. This exquisitely restored estate is more than a home—it's a living piece of American heritage. With documented visits by President Abraham Lincoln and President Andrew Jackson, this distinguished property offers a rare opportunity to own a residence steeped in presidential lore. The home seamlessly blends historic character with modern comfort. Original architectural details—including hardwood floors, grand fireplaces, and intricate millwork—have been lovingly preserved, while recent renovations have thoughtfully updated the kitchen, baths, and living areas to meet today's lifestyle. Whether you're captivated by early American history, Southern charm, or timeless craftsmanship, this home delivers all three with grace and grandeur. It's not just a house—it's a story, lovingly told and ready for its next chapter. Nestled on almost 30 acres of rolling Bluegrass hills, the property would also make an ideal boutique horse farm.
