Property Highlights

- 1105 E. Hyde Park Blvd. is a well-located 20-unit property situated on an expansive 30,341 SF lot, approximately half a city block, in the heart of Inglewood's View Heights neighborhood.
- The property's scale and configuration immediately set it apart from the dense, stacked apartment product that dominates much of the Westside. The units are thoughtfully distributed across 4 structures, creating a sense of openness, privacy, and livability.
- Comprised of (20) 1-bed units, each featuring its own entrance and direct access to landscaped walkways that run through the interior of the property.
- Mature trees, open lawn areas, and wide setbacks between buildings create a park-like environment that feels more akin to a low-density residential neighborhood than an apartment complex.
- The property is professionally managed by a well-known LA property management firm, providing confidence in day-to-day operations, tenant quality, and ongoing maintenance. Please note, because the property is comprised of multiple APN's, there is no requirement for an on-site manager.
- On-site amenities include approx. 16 parking spaces, and a centrally located community laundry room.
- Offered at $210,000 per unit and $257 per SF, a 5.94% CAP rate and a 10.51 GRM on current rents. These metrics are well supported by comparable sales within the past 6 months.
- The combination of land scale, low-density layout, professional management, and proximity to major lifestyle and employment drivers makes 1105 E. Hyde Park Blvd. a compelling acquisition in a residential pocket of Inglewood.

Neighborhood Overview

About Inglewood

A Neighborhood Shaped by Legacy & Promise

Inglewood is a city where history is not abstract. It lives in long-established neighborhoods, faith institutions, music venues, and locally owned businesses that have defined daily life for generations. Long before recent development cycles, Inglewood played a central role in Los Angeles' cultural landscape, particularly within Black music, arts, and community life. That foundation remains visible today, from neighborhood restaurants and storefronts to the social networks that continue to anchor families who have called Inglewood home for decades.

Over the last several years, a new layer of investment has arrived at an unprecedented scale. The development of SoFi Stadium, the Intuit Dome, and the Hollywood Park district has transformed former racetrack land into a dense, mixed-use environment that includes housing, hotels, offices, and public gathering spaces. The renovation of The Forum has reinforced Inglewood's identity as a global entertainment destination while maintaining its place in music history.

Downtown Inglewood remains the city's cultural and commercial core. Market Street and adjacent corridors continue to support small businesses, long-standing eateries, and neighborhood services that reflect the area's identity. New restaurants and shops have joined these blocks in recent years, often occupying existing storefronts rather than replacing them entirely. The result is a downtown that feels active but still rooted, shaped as much by local patrons as by visitors drawn in by nearby venues and events.

Inglewood's location further supports its evolution. Proximity to LAX and direct access to Westchester, El Segundo, Playa Vista, and Culver City place the neighborhood within reach of aerospace, technology, and creative employers. As Inglewood continues to change, its defining quality is not just the scale of new development, but the way legacy and growth coexist, creating a place that feels lived-in, resilient, and firmly connected to both its past and its future.

Spotlight - SoFi Stadium & Intuit Dome

SoFi Stadium opened in Inglewood in 2020 as a 3,100,000 SF, privately financed venue built on the former Hollywood Park Racetrack site.

- The project carried an estimated $5 billion construction cost and seats more than 70,000 spectators.
- Its development generated thousands of construction jobs and continues to support ongoing employment in operations, hospitality, and event services.
- Produced regional economic impacts in the hundreds of millions of dollars, with the 2023 CFP alone projected to add up to $225 million and create roughly 1,300–1,900 jobs.

Intuit Dome opened in Inglewood in 2024 as the $2-billion, 18,000-seat home of the LA Clippers.

- Designed by AECOM, the 915,000 sq ft facility includes a practice center, sports medicine clinic, team offices, retail space, and a public outdoor plaza.
- During construction, the project employed more than 1,200 union workers on site, with local-hire requirements integrated into build-out.
- Labor agreements prioritized local hiring and prevailing wages that averaged roughly $40–$60 per hour depending on trade.
- The Clippers committed approx. $100 million toward community benefits, including workforce development, affordable housing initiatives, and local infrastructure.

Spotlight - The Forum & Hollywood Park

The Forum is a 17,500-seat indoor arena that has operated as a cornerstone of Inglewood's economy since opening in 1967.

- Following a $100 million renovation completed in 2014, the venue transitioned into a concert-focused operation hosting more than 100 events annually.
- The Forum supports several hundred full-time and part-time jobs across event production, hospitality, security, and operations, with additional contract labor engaged during peak touring seasons.
- Its continued use generates consistent visitor spending and employment activity independent of newer stadium development.

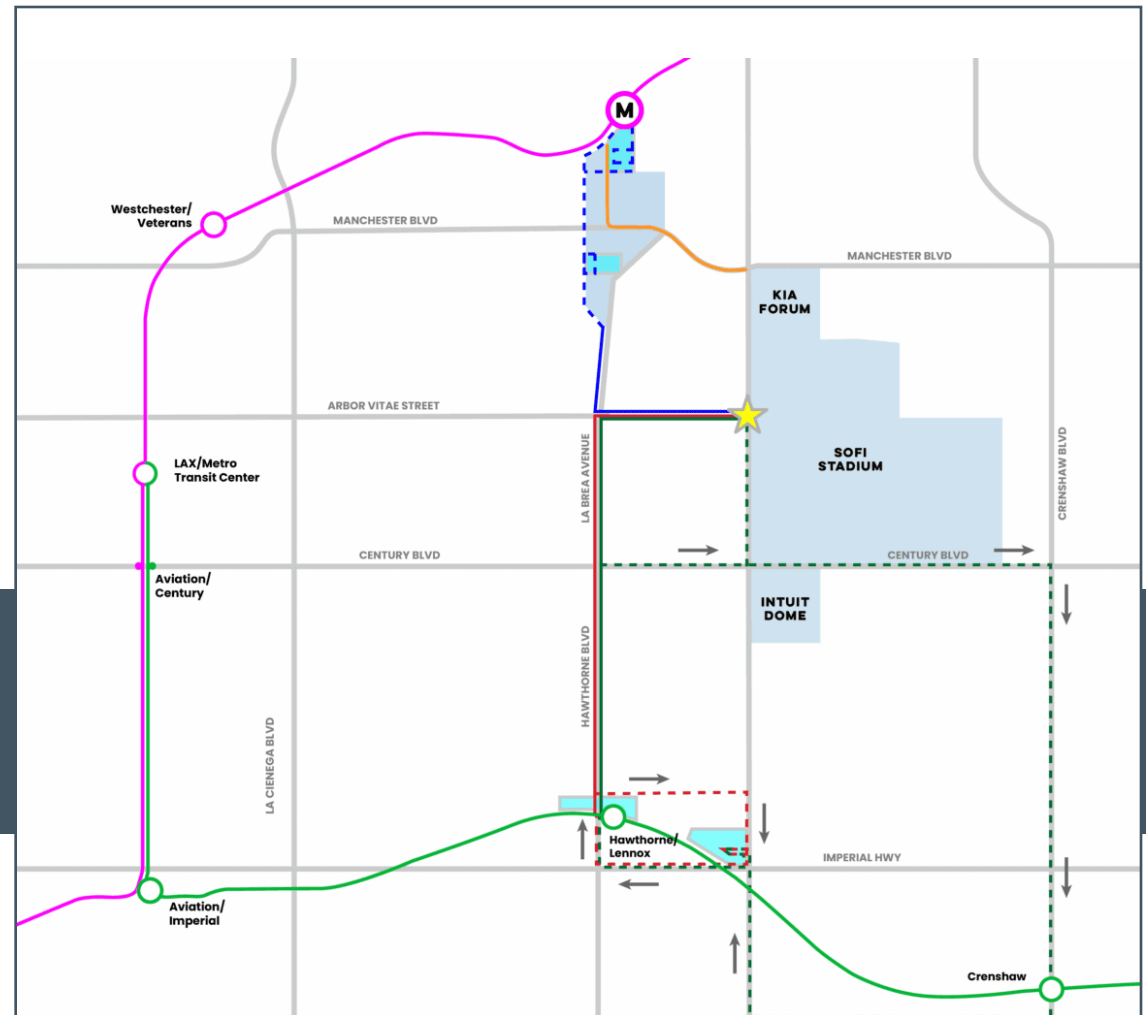

Hollywood Park is a 298-acre master-planned mixed-use development built on the former racetrack site and anchored by SoFi Stadium.

- The project is entitled for up to 2,500 residential units, 900,000 sq ft of office space, 890,000 sq ft of retail, a 300-key hotel, and more than 25 acres of parks and public space.
- Generated thousands of construction jobs under project labor agreements
- Hollywood Park is being built in phases, with additional residential, hotel, office, and studio components scheduled to come online through the mid-to-late 2020s. This extends its role as a year-round employment and community hub in Inglewood.

Connecting Inglewood's Growth

Through targeted transit, pedestrian, and infrastructure upgrades, the plan strengthens links between neighborhoods, jobs, and regional rail as Inglewood prepares for the years ahead.

- The Inglewood Transit Connector was conceived to address a long-standing first and last mile gap between Downtown Inglewood and the city's major employment, residential, and entertainment centers.
- While the fully elevated rail system has since been paused due to funding and stakeholder concerns, the city has advanced a revised, phased mobility strategy focused on near-term improvements.
- These include dedicated bus-only lanes, daily shuttle service connecting Metro rail stations to key destinations, new mobility hubs, bike infrastructure, and pedestrian upgrades along major corridors.
- Together, these investments are designed to reduce congestion, improve access for residents and workers, and strengthen connections between transit, jobs, and community assets as Inglewood continues to evolve through the late 2020s and ahead of the 2028 Olympics.

Nearby Developments

1) 400 Centinela Ave.

The approved project will deliver 120 affordable units on a one-acre site north of Florence Ave. Developed by Venice Community Housing and the Social Justice Learning Institute, the project includes a 79,000 sq ft residential building and an 18,000 sq ft community facility, supported by up to $65M in county bond financing.

2) 201 S. La Brea Ave.

The fully framed mixed-use project consists of a 6-story building with 144 units above ground-floor retail. The project replaces two small commercial buildings, and is located within walking distance of the K Line Downtown Inglewood Station.

3) 317 S. La Brea Ave.

The proposed mixed-use calls for two buildings rising 4 and 8 stories with a combined 143 units across studio, 1 bdrm, 2 bdrm, and 3 bdrm layouts above approx. 18,000 sq ft of commercial space. Developed by Uncommon, the project uses density bonus incentives and will reserve 18 units as affordable housing.

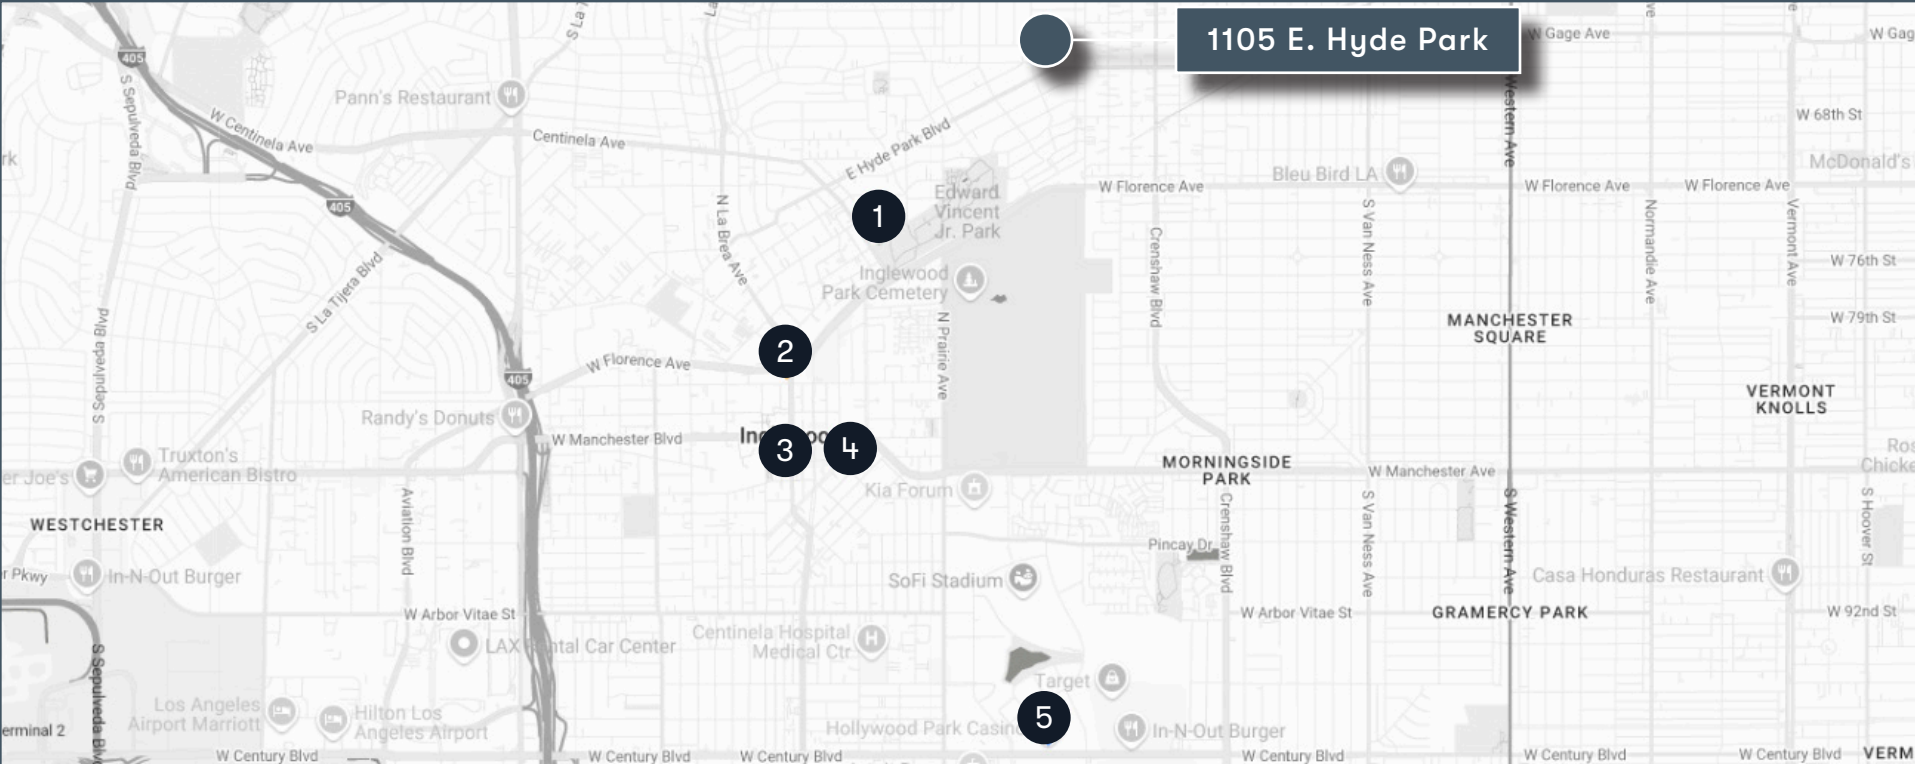

4) 336 E. Hillcrest Blvd.

The adaptive reuse project converts a 6-story 1960s medical office building into 65 residential units. Developed by Hillcrest Ventures, the project retains existing podium parking and ground-floor commercial space while adding housing above. The redevelopment is located just south of Downtown Inglewood.

5) The Crosby @ Hollywood Park

The Crosby is a newly completed residential building, within the Hollywood Park district, delivering 213 units. Developed by Kroenke Holdings, represents the 2nd multifamily phase completed near SoFi Stadium as part of the broader Hollywood Park master

Nearby Hotspots

1) Downtown Inglewood | Market Street

Downtown Inglewood centers along Market Street and remains the city's cultural and commercial heart. In recent years, new cafés, retail spaces, and public improvements have layered in alongside existing storefronts rather than replacing them. The area functions as a daily-use district shaped primarily by residents.

2) Hollywood Park District

The Hollywood Park district spans nearly 300 acres, and will feature 2,500 residences, 900,000 SF of office space, 890,000 SF of retail, and a 300-key hotel. Public parks, a lake and pedestrian paseos link housing, retail, office, and entertainment anchors around SoFi Stadium.

3) SoFi Stadium

SoFi Stadium is a 3.1M SF venue with a seating capacity of 70,000, expandable to over 100,000 for major events. It serves as home to two professional football teams, hosts regular concerts, and more. The stadium anchors the Hollywood Park district and drives year-round regional and global visitation.

4) Intuit Dome

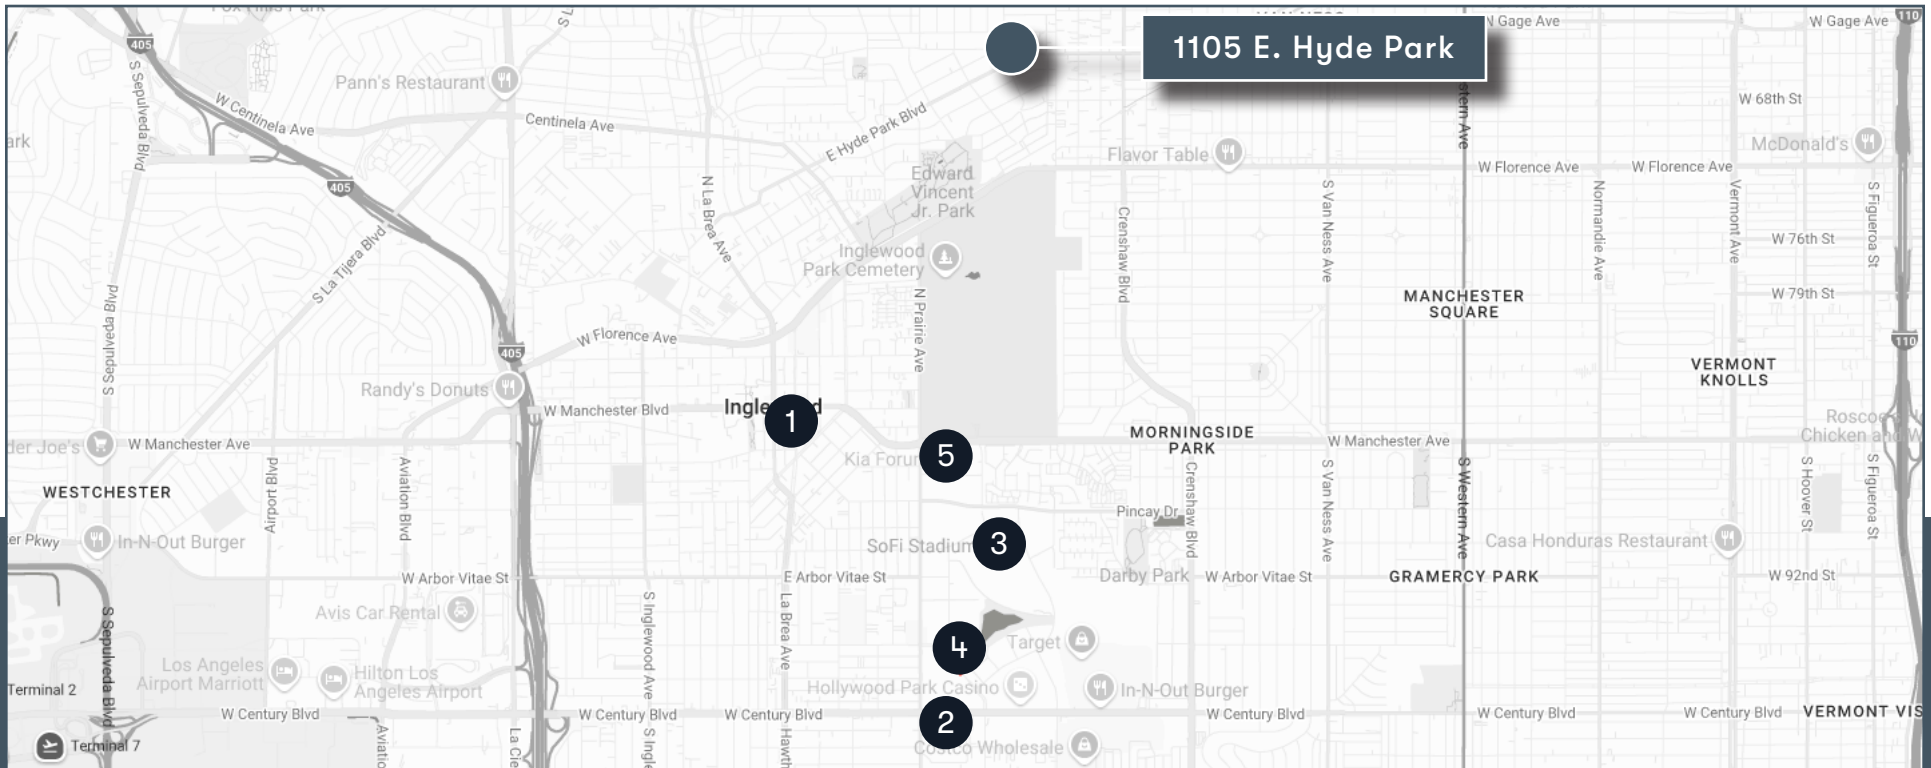

Intuit Dome is an 18,000-seat basketball arena recently debuted as the home of the LA Clippers. The venue is designed for year-round use and includes integrated public plazas, training facilities, and event space. Its location reinforces this portion of Inglewood as a concentrated entertainment and sports campus.

5) The Forum

The Forum is a historic indoor arena with seating for 17,500 guests and a long legacy as a premier music venue. Following extensive renovations, it now operates primarily as a concert and performance space.
