- The existing comps for a 5 ba / 7 ba / 3300 SF unit is right around $2.5M in NW DC.
- Notably, non of these comps have more than 5 full baths.
- As the subject property is a hostel, this comp is only for building construction consideration.
- The real value of the home is the hostel permit and the layout including the additional full baths.

The screenshot displays the Airbnb search interface for Washington, DC. The search results show three listings:

- Shared hotel room in Washington: Generator DC-Bed in a 4 Bed Dorm, 1 bunk bed, Feb 15 - 20, $48 $38 night, 4.56 (184) reviews.
- Shared room in Washington: Duo Nomad, 6 Bed Dorm, Free cancellation, Feb 23 - 28, $38 night, 4.77 (26) reviews.
- Shared room in Washington: Single Horizontal Capsule in 14-Pod Mixed Room, 1 bed, Feb 16 - 21, $51 night, 4.69 (64) reviews.

A map shows the location of these listings in Washington, DC, with prices ranging from $38 to $51 per night. A detailed view of the 'Duo Nomad, 6 Bed Dorm' listing is shown on the right, featuring a room with bunk beds and a price of $38 per night. The listing includes a host profile for 'Duo' with 5 years of hosting experience and a booking calendar for 2/23/2025 to 2/28/2025 for 1 guest.

- On Airbnb and other commercial hostel sights, you can see that these dorm style hostels rent for as high as $51 a night per bed.
- As the subject property conditions are not on par with these examples, we have used a generously LOW number of $30 per bed/night.
- Even at $30/bed, $x 27 \times 30 = $24,300$ per month at full occupancy

- This is a theoretical comparison of multiple scenarios using various financial assumptions
- The investor must conduct his own study. We guarantee nothing.
- We are assuming the applicability of the newly enacted 16% hotel tax.
- Management and operations can be reduced greatly, by "hiring" a front desk person who doubles as a cleaner, in return for free bed.
- $2.5M remains the offered price.
