About Century City

Los Angeles' Premier Business & Retail Hub

Once a backlot for 20th Century Fox Studios, Century City has evolved into one of Los Angeles' most powerful business and lifestyle districts. It is a polished neighborhood where corporate energy meets architectural elegance. Today, it stands as a symbol of the city's modern Westside identity: compact, vertical, and remarkably convenient. Within just a few walkable blocks, office towers, luxury residences, and high-end retail converge to create an environment that feels both urban and refined.

At the heart of the neighborhood is Westfield Century City, one of Los Angeles' premier open-air retail destinations. The 1.3 million SF complex has undergone a $1 billion transformation, adding a wide array of flagship stores. Its redesign has made it as much a community hub as a shopping center, drawing both residents and professionals for weekday lunches, weekend outings, and post-meeting drinks on rooftop terraces.

Century City's business core continues to expand, supported by major investments in office, hospitality, and mixed-use development. Along Avenue of the Stars, new office towers are leasing quickly, attracting global law firms, private equity groups, and entertainment companies that are redefining the neighborhood's commercial profile. The result is an ecosystem where some of LA's most influential dealmakers, producers, and executives work steps from their homes.

Nearby green spaces like Rancho Park and the Los Angeles Country Club provide breathing room in the middle of the city. The Metro Purple Line station, scheduled to open in 2027, will further enhance access by connecting the area directly to Beverly Hills, DTLA, and the Westside.

For investors and residents alike, Century City remains one of the most desirable and resilient markets in Los Angeles, balancing corporate prestige with everyday livability.

1) Westfield Century City

A cornerstone of modern Westside living, Westfield Century City blends high-end retail with open-air design and a distinctly LA atmosphere. Its $1 billion redevelopment brought in Eataly, Javier's, Bloomingdale's, and an Apple flagship, all framed by landscaped courtyards and polished architecture. It remains a central Westside gathering place for professionals, residents, and visitors.

2) Avenue of the Stars

Lined with glass-and-steel landmarks, Avenue of the Stars serves as the corporate backbone of Century City. The corridor is home to major law firms, entertainment studios, and financial institutions, all framed by signature mid-century towers and sleek new developments.

3) Rancho Park

Just south of Century City, Rancho Park offers a pocket of green tranquility in the middle of the Westside. The 18-hole municipal golf course and tree-lined open spaces draw everyone from executives unwinding after work to families looking for a weekend escape.

4) Los Angeles Country Club

Among the city's most prestigious institutions, the Los Angeles Country Club anchors the northern edge of Century City with its sprawling fairways and century-old heritage. The club remains a symbol of tradition and exclusivity.

5) Beverly Hills Golden Triangle

Centered around Rodeo Dr, it is home to global fashion houses, five-star hotels, and iconic restaurants frequented by industry power players. Beyond its reputation for glamour, the district operates as a key economic node, connecting Century City's corporate core with Beverly Hills' dining and retail hub.
