I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Legat Commercial Real Estate, LLC, as the exclusive representative for 10201 Fairfax Blvd, LLC, is pleased to present the opportunity to acquire Gatewood Plaza, located at 10201 Fairfax Boulevard, Fairfax City, Virginia. The 84% leased offering consists of an 88,995 SF, five-story Class A office building situated on a 3.0-acre site, zoned C-2 in Fairfax City. The property offers a stable, diversified rent roll from professional services, government contractors, medical users, and tech tenants, with strong in-place income and significant redevelopment potential to a significantly larger mixed-use project.

The property is being offered at a purchase price of $14,500,000, reflecting a 10.02% cap rate on the current Net Operating Income of $1,452,995. The Seller will master lease the 16% of vacant suites to deliver the Building 100% leased. In addition to the excellent cap rate this investment opportunity will have the added bonus of having a purchaser take advantage of the redevelopment potential of this office property to a mixed-use project with increased size (higher FAR) and a potential for retail and multi-family.

Strategically located on Route 50 (Fairfax Blvd), the property provides excellent accessibility to I-66 and Route 123, and is walkable to retail, hotel, dining, and banking amenities. With Fairfax's high average household income and a healthy employment base, this asset benefits from strong market fundamentals. This offering presents investors with a rare opportunity to acquire a stabilized, income-producing, low-maintenance asset in a prime Northern Virginia submarket—with strong tenancy, professional management, and long-term upside redevelopment potential.

IX. MARKET INFORMATION SUMMARY

Washington Market Summary

The Washington, D.C. region benefits from its status as the nation's capital, which typically brings stability to the employment sector and attracts talent from across the country. Historically, the job market in this region has been anchored by the federal government, which continues to play a crucial role in the local economy. Currently, the Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE) has initiated significant cuts to the federal workforce, resulting in thousands of job losses through the nation. At this point, it is unclear what permanent impact the new administration will have on employment in the D.C. region.

People are typically drawn to the Washington, D.C., area for its abundant job opportunities, high quality of life, and vibrant cultural scene. The region boasts excellent public transportation, diverse neighborhoods, and many museums, theaters, and dining options. Following a slower-than-average recovery from the disruption caused by the coronavirus pandemic, the D.C. region has made significant strides. As of second quarter 2025, Washington-area employers added approximately 33,000 jobs over the past year, reflecting a 1.0% change compared to 1.2% nationally. This brought total employment in the market to approximately 3.4 million jobs, an increase of about 39,000 jobs over the past five years.

The federal government also normally attracts jobs in technology, defense contracting, and professional services, benefiting from proximity to the nation's capital. Employment in the professional services sector accounts for nearly one-quarter of all regional jobs. Office-using employment has changed by 3,700 jobs (0.4%) year over-year as of 2025Q2 compared to 0.0% nationally.

The D.C. region benefits from a diverse, highly skilled, educated workforce, with approximately 2.5 million households and 6.5 million people. The median income in the region is $120,000, compared to $79,000 nationally. Higher incomes lead to increased consumer spending, and D.C.'s consumer spending is projected to grow faster than the U.S. average through 2028.

According to projections from Oxford Economics, job growth is expected to slow in the coming years, with an average annual growth rate of 0.5% from 2026 to 2029. This aligns with national trends of slower economic growth due to growing uncertainty in the market. The Washington unemployment rate is approximately 3.2%, compared to the national rate of 4.1%. The region's ability to adapt to economic changes and leverage its strengths in education and innovation will be crucial for future job growth. Oxford Economics states that the forecast for federal government employment faces downside risks due to limited opportunities for increased federal hiring and the possibility of more aggressive payroll reductions under the second Donald Trump presidency.
