There are nearly 70,000 residents as redevelopment efforts geared up about a dozen years ago. Today, public and private improvements worth nearly $2.5 billion are underway in East Orange, where 4,000 new apartments are either complete, under construction, or before the planning board. Construction has begun at the largest, the Crossings at Brick Church Station, a 9-acre, mixed-use development of approximately 1,000 apartments and more than 100,000 square feet of retail space. The Crossings, which is valued at $500 million, is funded by a public-private partnership.
