About Port of Freeport

Freeport is a city in the Brazoria County of Texas, USA, located on the Gulf Coast. It is known for its major seaport that has helped foster a thriving economy and numerous businesses in the region. The Freeport port is among the largest in the United States, handling shipments of crude oil, natural gas, chemicals, and other commodities. The port plays a critical role in the transportation of goods for businesses not just in Freeport, but throughout the region.

The businesses located in, or nearby Freeport port include petrochemical and oil refineries, as well as logistics and transportation companies. The petrochemical industry has a significant presence in the area, with companies like Dow Chemical, BASF, Air Liquide, and Chevron Phillips Chemical having large manufacturing plants in the region. Other businesses include metal fabricators, shipyards, and marine equipment suppliers.
