ABOUT LITTLE ROCK

The City of Little Rock, “Where America Comes Together,” is located at the crossroad of Interstate 30 and Interstate 40, the most heavily traveled interstate in the nation. This is the second fastest-growing region of the United States, with 40 percent of the nation’s population and buying power within a 550-mile radius of Little Rock, and more than one million people living within 50 minutes of downtown. Little Rock is the capital and largest city in the State of Arkansas, and it is the county seat of Pulaski County.

Little Rock sits on the south bank of the Arkansas River, and derives its name from a rock formation along the river, named “La Petite Roche” by French explorer Jean-Baptiste B nard de La Harpe in the 1720s. Little Rock serves as a cultural and economic center within Arkansas. The city is home to several cultural institutions including the Arkansas Art Center, the Arkansas

Repertory Theatre, and the Arkansas Symphony Orchestra, as well as many large corporations, including Dillard’s, Windstream Communications, Acxiom, Stephens Inc., Heifer International, and the Clinton Foundation.

Little Rock is home to two universities that are part of the University of Arkansas System: University of Arkansas at Little Rock and University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences. Philander Smith College and Arkansas Baptist College are also located in Little Rock.

Little Rock is served by two primary Interstate Highways (I-40 and I-30) and four auxiliary Interstates (I-430, I-440, I-630, and I-530). Seven airlines operate flights from Clinton International Airport in Little Rock, and Amtrak provides twice daily rail service from the city.
