The property occupies a strategic location near the heart of Chatham Park, a major mixed-use development. It provides immediate access to new retail, dining, healthcare, and residential areas. The site benefits from improved infrastructure, proximity to Highway 64, and growing commercial amenities, making it ideal for businesses seeking visibility and connectivity in a rapidly expanding market.

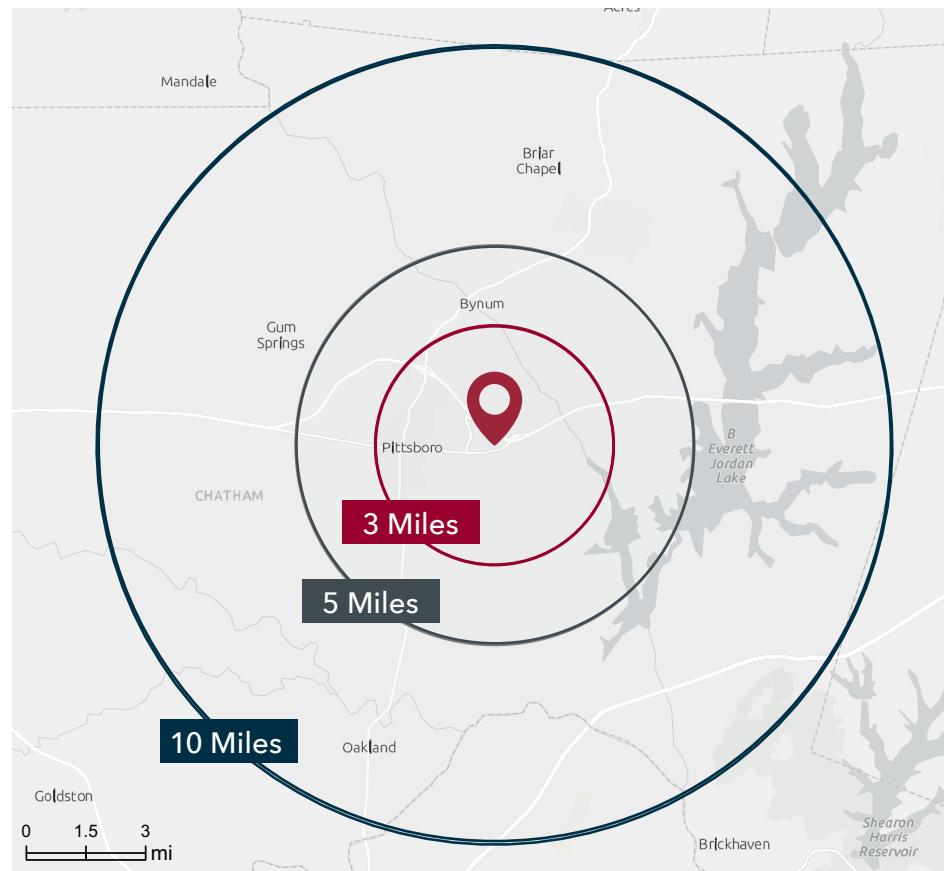

Demographic projections through 2060 anticipate a roughly 73% population growth, signaling long-term momentum. Market Overview

Since 2020, Chatham County has experienced remarkable growth across demographic, economic, and industrial sectors. The county's population surged from approximately 76,285 in 2020 to an estimated 81,624 by 2023.

Anchored by transformative mega projects like Wolfspeed's $5 billion silicon carbide semiconductor plant and VinFast's planned $4 billion electric vehicle facility, the region has drawn roughly $9 billion in industrial investment and created an initial wave of 9,000 direct jobs—with substantial additional "halo" positions projected. Dr. Michael Walden, Professor Emeritus and economist at NC State University, noted that between 2019 and 2023, Chatham outpaced both state and national GDP growth, although this surge coincided with rising living costs—about a 24% increase in the surrounding metro area—highlighting some affordability pressure.

These industrial titans have sparked further infrastructure investments and residential development, especially within expansive projects like Chatham Park, which is reshaping the county's suburban and economic landscape.

Looking ahead through the remainder of the decade, Chatham County is positioned for sustained expansion and maturation. Wolfspeed is nearing the completion of its massive facility and is expected to commence full-scale production in mid-2025, boosting employment and economic activity. Although VinFast's timeline shifted—originally targeting 2025, now opening between 2028 and 2025—the project is still anticipated to introduce up to 7,500 jobs upon full deployment.
