About Jerome, PA

Nestled in the scenic hills of Somerset County, Jerome, Pennsylvania is a quiet, close-knit community that offers the charm of small-town living with easy access to the amenities of nearby Johnstown. With a population under 1,000, Jerome is part of Conemaugh Township and is known for its peaceful atmosphere, friendly neighbors, and a strong sense of local pride. The town's history is rooted in coal mining and railroads, and today it retains a nostalgic character with tree-lined streets, modest homes, and a backdrop of rolling Appalachian foothills.

Just minutes from Jerome, 170 Phillips Street in Hollsopple presents a unique opportunity in a serene rural setting. This expansive 4.76-acre property once served as a senior living facility and features over 26,000 square feet of space, offering potential for redevelopment or continued use in healthcare or residential services. Surrounded by natural beauty and a supportive community, the location combines tranquility with convenience—ideal for those seeking a slower pace of life without sacrificing accessibility.
