Apple acquires $445 million commercial property in Rancho Bernardo in 22Q3

Apple has acquired the 67.5-acre, 7-building, Rancho Vista Corporate Center in Rancho Bernardo, north San Diego. The purchase is part of Apple's continued plan to expand hardware and software engineering in the San Diego area. The property is located at 16399 West Bernardo Drive and ready to use as an industrial and flex campus.

The San Diego Union-Tribune reports this is Apple's first commercial property purchase in the region. Apple has been building up its employment plans, and now aims to have 5,000 workers locally by 2026. Apple's jobs website includes new openings across software, data science and other non-hardware positions.

In 2020, the previous owner, Swift Real Estate, completed an $80 million campus-wide renovation project, which transformed the site into a Class A office and R&D building, according to their website. The renovations added a number of amenities, including a cafe, fitness center, collaboration spaces and more.

"We've been part of the community in San Diego for more than two decades," an Apple spokesperson told the San Diego Union-Tribune, "and are thrilled to continue investing here as we expand our world-class teams."

Rancho Bernardo Sub Market

Since 2020, most would agree that Apple has driven leasing activity in Rancho Bernardo. The world's largest tech firm has signed at least five new leases in the San Diego area totaling nearly 600,000 SF. And during 22Q2 and 22Q3, Apple signed two new leases totaling almost 150,000 SF as they committed to 53,000 square feet in Rancho Bernardo's, Rancho Vista Corporate Center as well as 95,000 SF for the full building at The Point, San Diego.

Rancho Bernardo is a steady growth market, averaging less than 10 office trades annually over the past five years. Larger buildings sell well, with most sales in the $400/SF range. However, Apples' recent 22Q3 acquisition was significantly more. Foreign investors are also in the Rancho Bernardo submarket.

Office rents in Rancho Bernardo are approximately $39.00/SF gross, which is similar to the San Diego average. Rents in the submarket grew by 1.5% year over year as of 2023Q1, and though a positive trend, the 2.6% annualized average over the past three years reflects the potential for better growth.

Rancho Bernardo has the potential to emerge as a destination for life sciences firms given its proximity to neighboring Del Mar Heights/Carmel Valley and Sorrento Mesa. Rancho Bernardo could provide a more cost-friendly option to those tenants getting priced out of neighboring submarkets as their terms are ending. This is similar to the Sorrento Mesa submarket as Qualcomm dominated and the market became hotter.

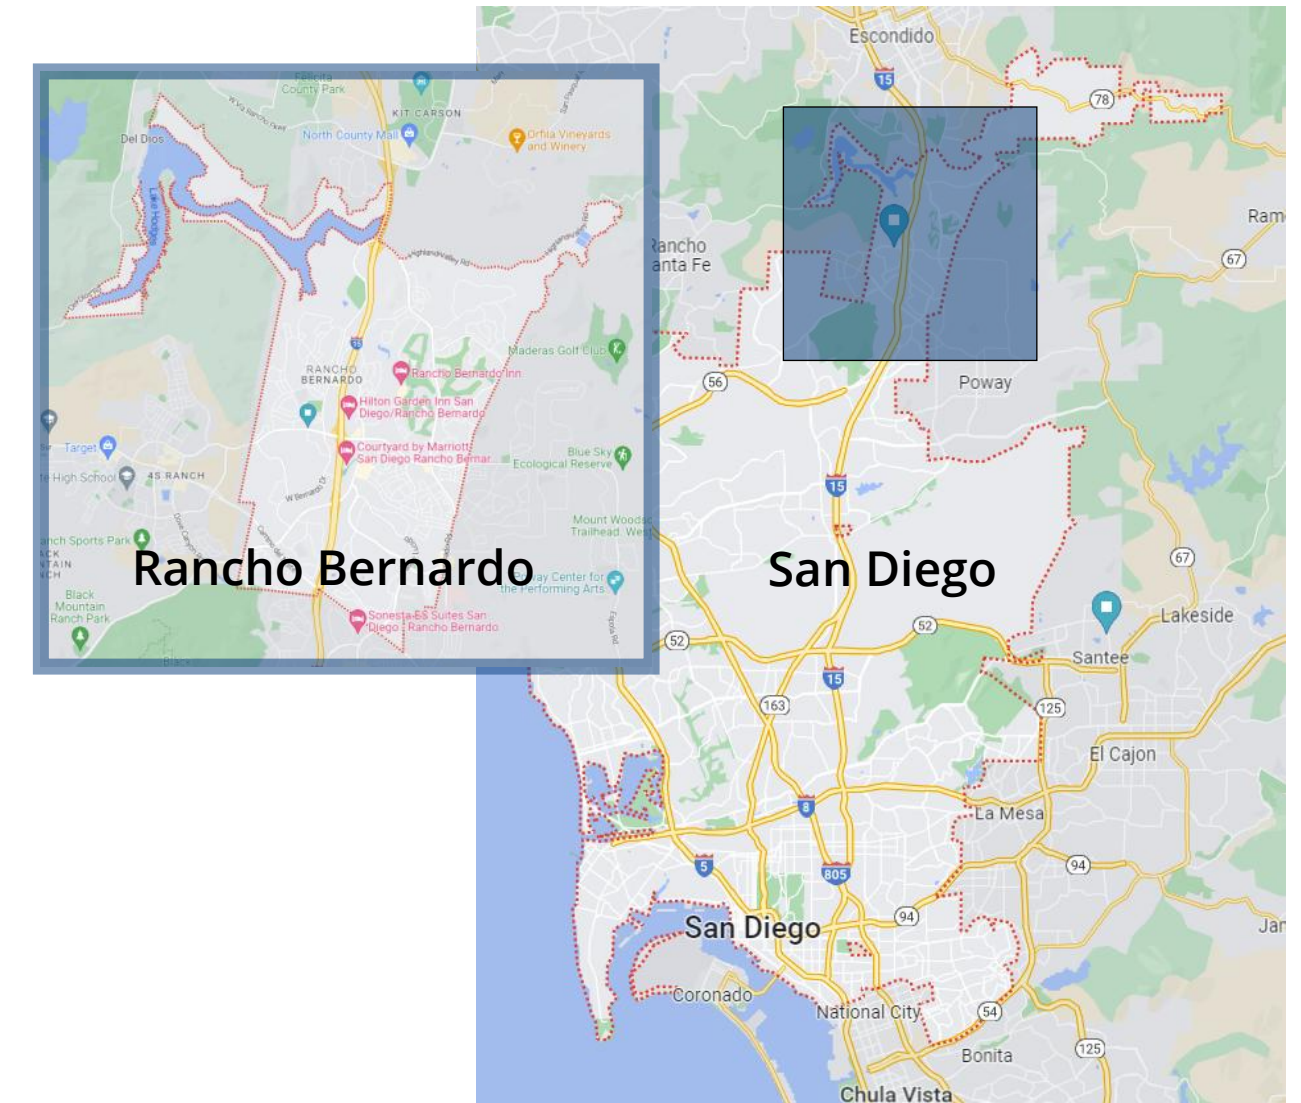

Significant recent transactions include:

- Innovatus Capital Partners and Lincoln Property Co. partnered in 2022 to purchase The Pinnacle located at 10920 Via Frontera for $48.8 million, or about $443/SF.
- The Sharp-Rees Stealy build-to-suit that was completed in 2017 was the last notable project completion in Rancho Bernardo. Several proposals are in progress, and one of them broke ground in 2022.
- Drawbridge Realty is building a $30 million, about $370/SF, 80,000-SF office building located at Via Del Campo, scheduled to be completed in 2023.
- MediaTek, a Taiwanese firm that had occupied space in Sorrento Mesa, leased nearly 65,000 SF at Kilroy Sabre Springs at the start of 2023, representing a substantial expansion from less than 20,000 SF in Sorrento Mesa.
- Peraton, a national security and technology firm, leased almost 50,000 SF at the Innovation Corporate Center during 22Q3 in one of the submarket's newer buildings, built in 2005.

Demographically, household median annual incomes are above $100,000, and about 25% residents hold graduate or STEM degrees, according to census data. It is also a diversified submarket that includes most of San Diego's core industries such as Northrop Grumman, Amazon, General Atomics, and Scripps Health.

Rancho Bernardo's central location and accessibility along arterial freeways, SR-56 and Interstate -15, provide relatively easy commutes for residents from across San Diego into the submarket's numerous office campuses. Its proximity to neighboring employment markets in the UC San Diego area (University Town Center and Torrey Pines) and Del Mar Heights/Carmel Valley make the Rancho Bernardo submarket an attractive alternative for tenants. Those are among the attributes that have made this one of the primary landing spots for Apple in San Diego.
