the location

La Jolla is an affluent coastal community and neighborhood within the city of San Diego, California, located about twelve miles north of Downtown. Often called “the Jewel of San Diego,” it spans roughly seven square miles along the Pacific Ocean, blending stunning natural beauty with upscale living. With a population of around 45,000, it’s renowned for its Mediterranean-like climate, world-class beaches, luxury resorts, and a mix of residential, commercial, and scientific hubs.

Bird Rock is La Jolla’s charming, walkable “downtown” enclave, situated at the southern edge along the coast. Named for the seabirds that once nested on its rocky shores, this family-friendly, bohemian-vibe neighborhood covers about 0.5 square miles and has nearly 3,000 residents. The area is bustling with boutique shops, cafes and restaurants. It’s kid and pet-friendly, with a weekly farmers’ market and various community events.
