Property Economics

- There are no long-term leases in place. Current leases expire at various times from December 2025 through November 2026.
- Current annual gross lease revenue is $88,800 ($17.18 PSF) on a modified gross basis.
- Operating expenses are projected to be $6.77 PSF, which puts current rent at $10.41 net.
- Existing leases are well below market and do not contribute to or support the actual market value of the Property.
- Market rent of $18 PSF on net basis (+/- $25 mod gross), would generate net revenue of $93,042 which equates to an 8% CAP rate.
- The current market conditions support the sale of the Property to an owner-occupant who could occupy one or several of the buildings and collect rent from the others. This would also include the opportunity to “rebrand” the property, taking full advantage of the excellent exposure.
- A cash flow investor who is willing to work through the process of re-leasing the spaces at market rent will enjoy solid cash flow with a very stable investment.
- Offering price: $1,150,000 ($223 PSF).
