ABOUT THE AREA: MABLETON, GA

Mableton, Georgia, is experiencing a significant transformation in its commercial landscape, driven by strategic redevelopment initiatives and a surge in mixed-use projects. The Village at Mableton, for instance, has undergone a substantial makeover, converting the former Kmart space into a 28,000-square-foot Burlington Stores, a 22,000-square-foot Ross Dress for Less, a 20,000-square-foot dd's Discounts, and a 10,000-square-foot Five Below, alongside additional retailers.

In 2024, the city unveiled its Urban Redevelopment Plan, aiming to blend commercial, residential, and mixed-use developments to revitalize the area.

Additionally, the Millery, a dynamic mixed-use development, is set to open in the first quarter of 2024, offering retail spaces with direct access to major intersections and proximity to the East-West Connector.

These developments underscore Mableton's commitment to fostering a vibrant commercial environment, attracting new businesses, and enhancing the community's economic vitality.
