Astonishing Views

Kossuth Street View

To the north, the project's architecture reflects the surrounding buildings in both density and material. This is accomplished through varied roof forms and textured materials, its presence is familiar and contextual. Kossuth Street features large trees and additional landscaping to complement the neighborhood year-round. Resident entries are defined with colorful doors, awnings, gardens, iron railings, and window boxes. The Kossuth Street garden, located midway through the block, includes public seating and provides opportunities for public art and for neighbors to socialize.

Whittier Street View

The Whittier façade and associative landscape is one that supports a rich and lively street experience indicative of walkable, pedestrian-friendly urban environments. Marked by large areas of storefront glass with rhythmic masonry infill, the environment will be one that is transparent and measured for people. Sidewalk cafe seating and retail entrances are enhanced by brick-edged tree planters featuring trees and ornamental shrubs. The building is set-back at the second-floor level, providing an additional green roof opportunity that creates a visual interest at-grade and also serves to soften the building façade.

Jaeger Street View

At the junction of Jaeger and Lansing Streets, the building compresses inwards to create a thoughtful, transitional space adjacent to the public thoroughfare. The development's "front door" occurs through a meandering garden passage. The setback provides an additional area for public art, ornamental trees, tables, and gathering space, and is located adjacent to the project's co-working space. Green roofs, front gardens with iron railings, and street planters enhance the Jaeger Street sidewalk environment.

Grant Avenue View

Along Grant Avenue, the project reinforces an urban environment by turning what would otherwise be a typical service alley into a north-south corridor designed to provide opportunities for additional at-grade residential units, vehicular access, retail frontage, and service zones. Varied building setbacks along Grant Avenue provide opportunities for rooftop gardens on the second floor as well as landscaping and trees at the street-level. The building façade is enhanced with vine covered green walls and public art.

Kossuth Elevation

Built as a reflection of the vernacular, the development's presence on Kossuth is one that captures the spirit of the urban life in Schumacher Place. Walk-up stoops, public art, and scaled interventions punctuate the streetscape.

Jaeger Setbacks

Jaeger is marked as a transition between Whittier street and the neighborhoods to the west and north. The buildings step inward vertically and horizontally to create relief and green space at the street, creating both porches and gardens emblematic of the neighborhood.

Whittier & Jaeger

The corner of Whittier and Jaeger aims to capture the life and vibrancy of the development. Flexible indoor/outdoor space supports active street frontage, while building profiles and façades invoke the highly textural and material affect of the urban corridor.

WELCOME TO
German Village

German Village is a historic and charming neighborhood located just south of downtown Columbus, Ohio. Known for its picturesque brick-lined streets, beautifully preserved 19th-century architecture, and vibrant community spirit, German Village has become one of the most desirable areas in the city.

The neighborhood's history dates back to the mid-1800s when German immigrants settled in the area, bringing with them their culture, traditions, and architectural styles. Today, German Village stands as a testament to historic preservation, with many of its original structures meticulously restored and maintained.

One of the most striking features of German Village is its distinctive atmosphere. The narrow streets, lined with brick sidewalks and mature trees, create an intimate and walkable environment. The neighborhood's charm is further enhanced by its mix of residential and commercial spaces, allowing residents and visitors to enjoy a truly urban village experience.

The neighborhood's vibe is a perfect blend of historic charm and modern amenities. Residents and visitors alike can enjoy strolling through Schiller Park, browsing unique shops, or dining at award-winning restaurants. The sense of community is palpable, with neighbors often gathering for events and festivals that celebrate the area's rich heritage.

SCHILLER PARK

An inspiring response to the market demand for location, size, quality, and design, Jaeger Square is the right next step in moving the neighborhood and the city forward.

Since Columbus' founding, the blocks in and around German Village have seen both prosperity and struggle. Many of the first European immigrants to Columbus landed here, living in homes on these beautifully brick-paved streets and working in breweries, bakeries, and tanneries in the neighborhood. They were among those who made Columbus what it is today. It is with careful consideration of the location's culturally meaningful past that Jaeger Square ushers in an exciting step forward for the city's most historic and desirable area.
