2036 SHATTUCK AVENUE, BERKELEY, CA UC BERKELEY GROWTH IN DOWNTOWN

UNIVERSITY AVENUE INNOVATION CENTER project

will create 8 floors of laboratories, conference rooms, and classrooms to be occupied by a future institute and graduate students. The existing property is owned by UC Berkeley.

The 122' tall complex will center around several wet and dry laboratory spaces with support space, offices, meeting rooms, and additional rooms to encourage collaboration. The facility is expected to be used as an institute and graduate space for "campus affiliated entrepreneurs and their collaborators," as per the application.

Plans for the Innovation Zone require the demolition of five structures, including University Hall, a 1959-built complex designed by Welton Becket & Associates. Demolition crews have already started the process of removing the building. Final approval by the UC Regents is expected by July this year. Construction is expected to start in Spring 2026 and finish by the winter of 2028. The university states the project will be donor-developed.

BANCROFT HOUSING project will create 8 floors of laboratories, conference rooms, and classrooms to be occupied by a future institute and graduate students. The existing property is owned by UC Berkeley.

The Bancroft/Fulton West Parking Lot will permanently close by the beginning of fall semester 2025, in preparation for the construction of the Bancroft Fulton Student Housing project. Pre-construction activities will begin during the fall, and construction is anticipated to begin in January 2026. The Bancroft-Fulton Student Housing project is designed to address UC Berkeley's critical need for student housing. Located on a 0.8-acre campus- owned site, the project will include a 23-story high-rise with primary frontage on Bancroft Way and a 10-story southern extension facing Durant Avenue. The building will provide 1,625 new residence hall-style beds for first-year undergraduate students in a mix of triples, doubles, and singles, as well as five apartments for faculty and staff. The housing complex will feature a 500-seat dining commons on the first two levels, with additional outdoor seating on a terrace. Other amenities include a fitness center, laundry facilities, meeting spaces, and a large elevated terrace for gathering, all located on the third floor. Each residential floor will also include multiple study lounges, offering quiet spaces for academic work and collaboration.

Designed to achieve LEED Gold certification, the Bancroft-Fulton Student Housing project incorporates advanced sustainability measures to minimize its environmental footprint. The building will also offer summer conference accommodations, with a variety of meeting and conferencing spaces available. The project was approved by the UC Board of Regents in March 2025, and is targeting a construction start date of January 2026. Completion is anticipated in summer 2028, in time for the start of the 2028-29 academic year.
