CITY INFORMATION

LOCATION DESCRIPTION

The Inland Empire's retail market has one of the best turnaround stories over the past two years. The vacancy rate spiked to 7.8% at the end of 2020 because several big-box retailers vacated space. But strong demand paired with minimal supply growth has aided fundamentals and the vacancy rate has fallen to 6.0o/o. Meanwhile, rents have grown by 6.6% over the past 12 months, compared to the five-year average of 4.1 o/o per year.

Leasing activity has been driven by food services, fitness centers, grocery stores, and discount retailers. One of the largest leases in the past year comes from Target, who is opening a new 70,000-SF store in Ontario in early 2023.

The supply pipeline has further decreased over the past 12 months because developers remain cautious. Most construction is built-to-suit near housing communities and built in phases to reduce risk. Areas such as Ontario Ranch are approved for thousands of new residential units. There are also several shopping centers under construction near new industrial centers where daytime spending can be more reliable.

Investors have hardly shied away from retail properties in the Inland Empire, despite rising interest rates. Buyers are targeting auto dealerships and shopping centers anchored by national credit tenants. Pricing has appreciated as a result, bringing market pricing to a record high of $300/SF and market cap rates to 5.7%.
