SUMMARY OF INS (IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE) IN THE U.S.

The United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), formerly part of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), is the federal agency responsible for administering the nation's immigration system. It processes various immigration-related applications, including naturalization, permanent residence, asylum, and refugee status. USCIS is part of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and operates independently from immigration enforcement agencies like ICE (Immigration and Customs Enforcement).

BUDGET OVERVIEW

USCIS is unique in that it is primarily funded through user fees. These fees account for about 97% of its budget, deposited into the Immigration Examinations Fee Account (IEFA). In FY 2020, USCIS had a budget of approximately $4.85 billion, with only a small portion coming from congressional appropriations.

For the fiscal years 2021-2023, the budget allocation has increased steadily. In FY 2022, USCIS's budget was $4.96 billion, and in FY 2023, it rose to $5.41 billion. These increases are driven by growing operational demands, such as reducing backlogs and improving infrastructure.

ORGANIZATIONAL GOALS AND PRIORITIES

USCIS focuses on enhancing the U.S. legal immigration system, investing in its workforce, and improving the efficiency of its operations. These goals align with broader DHS objectives to ensure security and uphold the integrity of the immigration system.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

USCIS is also involved in various strategic initiatives, such as modernizing its infrastructure, reducing application backlogs, and improving customer service through digital platforms. It employs over 19,000 personnel across 223 offices worldwide.
