The Madison Submarket is estimated to see a 48.3% job growth over the next 10 years, which is higher than the US average of 33.5%, yet these projections are expected to continue to climb as 2021-2022 produced an unprecedented development pipeline heading north out of the Nashville central business district. Recently titled one of the few elite “Supernova” markets by the Urban Land Institute in 2022, Greater Nashville’s accelerating population and employment growth rate has this submarket preparing for complete transformation.

QUALITY OF LIFE

Nashville consistently places at or near the top of national surveys for its quality of life, low costs of living and in doing business. These factors have, and will continue to, attract firms both nationally and internationally to relocate key functions to the area. The city has received accolades for its livability, tremendous job growth, business climate, and high number of young college graduates.

STRONG NASHVILLE FUNDAMENTALS

Nashville has matured into much more than a city known strictly for music and tourism. Along with music and entertainment, health care, tourism and conventions, publishing, finance and insurance, technology, higher education, and transportation are all leading industries of Nashville. Nashville's location, diverse economy, high quality workforce, unique tax advantages/incentives and the overall low cost of doing business are significant features further solidifying the city to be one of the premier business centers in the Southeast. As recently reported by Headlight Data, Nashville ranks as the third fastest growing metro economy. The strength and vibrancy of the market has made Nashville one of the most sought-after destination for educated young people, and the "creative class" of office users. These trends portend the city's continued strength and success over the long-term.
