Waterfront workspace in San Francisco's Financial District

201 Spear Street is an 18-story Class-A tower just steps from the waterfront in San Francisco's Financial District. Built in 1986 and renovated in 2018, this eco-conscious building is LEED Gold certified, Fitwel certified, Energy Star certified, and WiredScore Platinum certified.

In addition to the building's several outdoor plazas, WeWork's offering at 201 Spear Street spans five floors and features a mix of inviting lounges and sunny workspaces, all with breathtaking views of the bay.

The building's floor-to-ceiling windows flood the space with natural light and offer unbeatable views of the bay.

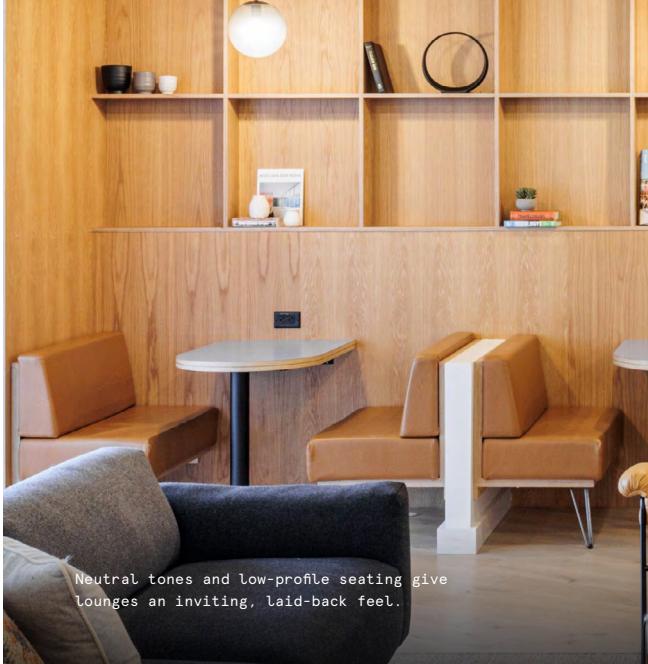

Exposed ceilings and metal ductwork add industrial appeal to this polished space.

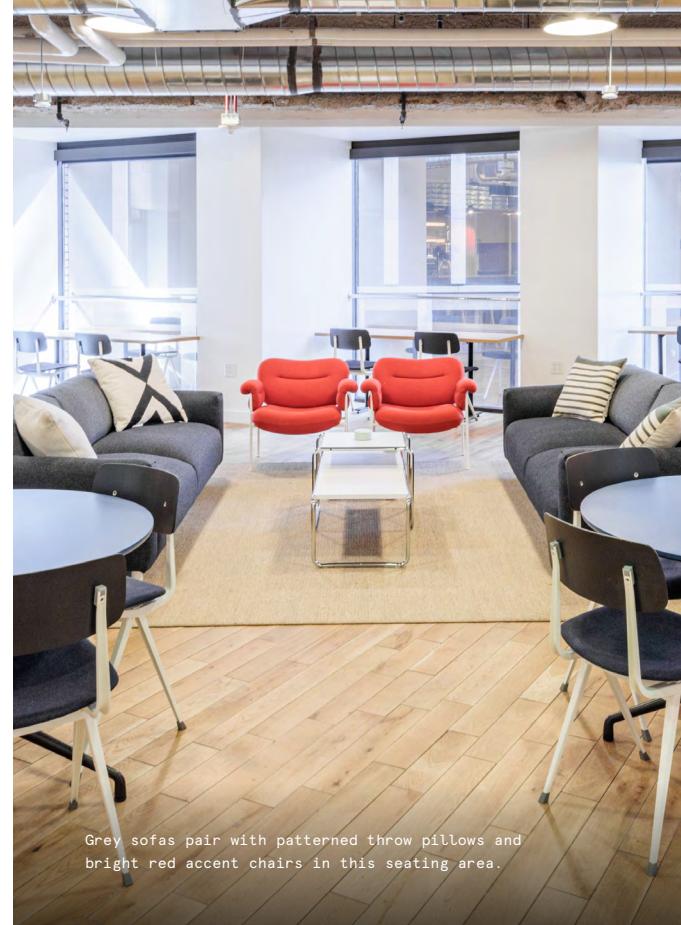

Bright, modern, and inviting

With its mix of warm wood tones, bright accent colors, and mid-century-inspired furnishings, 201 Spear Street combines professional polish with laid-back San Francisco appeal. A mix of man-made and natural materials comes together for an elevated industrial space paired with soft and comfortable textiles.

- Industrial elements include exposed ceilings, metal ductwork, and pendant lighting
- Custom millwork features throughout the space, serving as a focal point in the lounge's recessed seating nook
- Patterned textiles and pops of bright reds, yellows, and greens complement the space's largely neutral palette

Neutral tones and low-profile seating give lounges an inviting, laid-back feel.

Grey sofas pair with patterned throw pillows and bright red accent chairs in this seating area.

A black tile backsplash adds moody contrast to this community pantry.

Pops of sunny color and mid-century-inspired silhouettes feature throughout the space.

The space's custom millwork shines in this lounge's recessed nook, featuring built-in shelving and bench seating.

Glass-paneled offices provide privacy without compromising the space's open feel.
