While our home is the primary space of comfort and living, our Second Space – where we work – is equally as important. And while where we work has changed, the elements of an ideal work environment have remained the same.

Centrally located in Brea, finding an office space to rent has never been easier. While traditional coworking spaces optimize collaboration and socialization, Second Space centers around focus and security, offering the peace and quiet of your own private, lockable work suite with the benefit of an office environment. With key amenities including a conference room ready for presentations, Second Space Brea Place offers a remote workspace that is flexible, low maintenance, and distraction free.
