ABOUT CUSHMAN & WAKEFIELD

The new Cushman & Wakefield draws on the best of both legacy organizations (DTZ and Cushman & Wakefield) to create one of the world's largest real estate services firms, with a combined total of $5 billion in revenue, 43,000 employees, more than 4.3 billion square feet under management, and $191 billion in transaction value. Cushman & Wakefield now operates in more than 60 countries around the world and is well positioned in every major market for continued growth.

The new Cushman & Wakefield is a top-tier global commercial real estate services provider in every service line and every major geography in the world. With a tenacious, entrepreneurial, and client-centric culture of highly skilled people behind both firms, the new company will be able to tap into greater resources worldwide to ultimately deliver superior results for clients. Please visit cushmanwakefield.com for more information.

ABOUT BASIN STREET PROPERTIES

Celebrating 50 years, Basin Street Properties has truly come a long way. The company has grown from the small entrepreneurial firm of the early years to owning and managing over five million square feet of commercial real estate across two states. As a privately held company, Basin Street remains unique in the industry relative to the speed and ease that decisions – and deals – can be made.

Basin Street's investment in Petaluma is clearly their principal legacy; it has changed the fabric of that town forever. The company has demonstrated a profound understanding of how real estate can change a community, and strives to shape that impact with every development or investment in their current markets of Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Sacramento and Reno. Today, Basin Street has the right team in place to successfully navigate rapid growth. Just like in days past, their focus remains on “creating environments where people and businesses thrive.”
