Location Overview

Lovelock, Nevada, is the county seat of Pershing County, with a population of approximately 1,800 residents. Situated along Interstate 80, about 93 miles east of Reno and 430 miles west of Salt Lake City, Lovelock serves as a key stop for travelers and trucking operations.

The property benefits from a growing demand for storage solutions due to its rural setting, mining industry presence, and proximity to major highways. 610 Industrial Way is positioned in a central industrial zone, just outside city limits, providing a balance of accessibility and lower regulatory oversight compared to urban areas.

Market Analysis

The self-storage industry continues to perform strongly nationwide, with demand driven by population mobility, e-commerce, and business storage needs. In rural areas like Pershing County, storage facilities benefit from limited competition and steady local demand from residents, miners, and highway users.

Recent data indicates average occupancy rates for self-storage in Nevada hover around 85-90%, with cap rates for similar properties ranging from 7-9% in secondary markets. Lovelock's location along I-80 positions it well for future growth, particularly with ongoing development in northern Nevada's industrial and logistics sectors.
