Professional Background

As the former CEO and founder of CSR Commercial Real Estate Services, Tony Odom now is a Senior Vice President of Compass Commercial - Silicon Valley. His 20 plus years in commercial real estate, including leases, sub leases, development and the buying or selling of commercial property, brings a wealth of experience. Whether it is general office space, retail space, medical, industrial, R&D, advanced manufacturing or mixed-use properties, Tony is well versed in helping clients. His extensive knowledge of building plans, drawings, permits and the construction/TI process allows him to proficiently work with architects, general contractors and other service providers to assist his clients in obtaining exactly what it is they are looking for.

Prior to starting CSR Commercial, Tony developed his own commercial properties. His development processes included rezoning, entitlement, ground up construction and stabilization of the asset. Tony was also the Director of Support Services for Vodafone Americas / Asia Region, where he negotiated leases throughout North America and Asia, oversaw tenant buildout projects and subleased excess properties. He was also appointed the company Ombudsman where he acted as Vodafone's ethics officer to resolve conflicts and concerns.

Tony graduated from Washington State University, where he also played baseball and was recognized for his outstanding performance as the All-Pac 10 Conference catcher in 1985. Tony moved to the Bay Area in 1989. He and his wonderful family reside in San Jose. As a local resident, Tony has a very good understanding of commercial real estate in this area and strives to leverage his experience and connections in every transaction.
