Greater Lafayette, Indiana Is No Longer in the Shadows October 26, 2023

Public facilities like the West Lafayette Wellness Center are part of the $889 million in public investment that Greater Lafayette has produced since 2015.

By Jim Pitoukkas, Coldwell Banker Commercial Shook

Outside of recognition related to Purdue University, the Greater Lafavette region (consisting of West Lafavette, Lafavette and surrounding towns in Tippecanoe County), has been in the shadows of the Indianapolis MSA to the south and Chicago MSA to the north. This is changing, though. Growth over the last decade has pushed Greater Lafavette into the national spotlight as an emerging hub for innovation in advanced manufacturing in industries including medical, acrospace and defense, agriculture and nanotechnology, and a burgeoning housing market.

For three quarters straight, The Wall Street Journal and Realton.com have ranked Greater Lafavette the No. 1 Emerging Housing Market in America based on comparatively affordable housing, a skilled technology-based workforce, and a strong growing local economy. Additionally, current and to-be residents benefit from consistent public investments in quality-oflife infrastructure that continue to attract new residents across a range of ages and backgrounds.

Quality of life

Greater Lafayette has invested in excess of $889 million in public investment since 2015. These investments have ranged from new utility infrastructure, a new minor league ball field, parks, countywide trails, public facilities like the West Lafayette Wellness Center and the Lafayette Public Safety Center, and so much more.

Employers

Purdue University remains a key driver of economic development in the region, but certainly not the only driver of economic growth. Biotech, advanced manufacturing and aerospace are a few of the many technology-forward industries that have strong and growing local presences. Employers such as Subaru, Cook Biotech, Evonik, ZF, CAT, Wabash National, GE Aviation, Saab Technologies, Rolls Royce, Butler Aerospace and Defense and Flir are a few of the many large and wellknown employers that are proud to call Greater Lafayette home.

Furthermore, Greater Lafayette is at the bookend of the LEAP District, a 9,000-acre development spearheaded by the Indiana Economic Development Corp. with the mission of establishing Indiana as a dominate part of the national push toward hard tech manufacturing independence. Tailwinds from local industry, Purdue University and state initiatives are sure to benefit the region for years to come.

Development

With so much momentum in Greater Lafayette, it is no surprise that the development community has taken notice and invested billions of dollars into the community.

Housing has been a primary focus in and around the Purdue main campus. The $123 million State Street redevelopment project paved the way (pun intended) for several multi-million-dollar developments along the corridor. Rise on Chauncey, completed by R2 Cos., brought the tallest student housing property to the market. Hub on State, developed by Core Spaces, followed. The newest frontier of campus-proximate development is underway in the Discovery Park.

Discovery Park District is a multi-billion-dollar development led by the Purdue Research Foundation, The district has successfully attracted Saab, where the global company has now built a facility that manufactures the T-7 Red Hawk. By 2027, Saab expects to hire up to 300 employees for this facility.

Additionally, SkyWater Technology has announced plans to build a $1.8 billion semiconductor plant that would eventually offer hundreds of high-tech jobs. The community has not sat idle in seaction to the industry coming this way. The community has rallied around creating the support the industry will need to thrive.

Purdue University and Ivy Tech have announced plans to offer programs to educate and train the workforce that will be needed in the years to come. Additionally, significant investments are being made to create new housing

Housing

The tight housing supply in Greater Lafayette has led to a number of successful multifamily and single-family developments.

Luna Flats, a 98-unit mixed-use apartment and retail infill project in downtown Lafavette, recently opened its doors with 94 of the 98 residential units occupied. The project successfully incorporated historical elements of Main Street, including street-level office and retail suites. Perhaps most importantly, the project connected the east and west ends of scenic Main Street. Downtown Lafayette, with its many charming restaurants and retailers, continues to attract local and out-of-town visitors alike.

Greater Lafayette, Indiana Is No Longer in the Shadows

Provenance at Discovery Park District, a mixed-use multi-phase project being developed by Old Town Cos. in partnership with the Purdue Research Foundation, has brought Greater Lafayette its first larger-scale live/work/play community. The project has been well received. Townhomes, apartments and single-family homes are being quickly absorbed by the community as they are built.

New frontiers

Outward growth is being supported on the north, south and east side of Greater Lafayette by several public road and utility extensions, a couple of which I will highlight.

Yeager Road, on the north side of Tippecanoe County, is currently being extended to connect Kalberer Road and CR500.

Once complete, tentatively this fall, an area of 400 acres will be further readied for development. A couple large-scale housing projects along the Yeager Road extension are already going through the entitlement process in anticipation of road completion. The site is close to area schools, shopping and the new West Lafayette Wellness Center. This is just one more example of local leaders supporting forecasted growth, and the expected demand for additional housing.

On the east side of Lafayette, community leaders are supporting growth by readying a large site for new industry, by way of the extension to Park East Boulevard from Haggerty Road to McCarty Lane. The planned extension will bring water and sewer to the belly of a +/-450-acre industrial-zoned site, which was recently certified as shovel ready by the state.

The east and south sides of Lafayette are what many consider the next frontier of industrial development in the county.

Recent industrial projects by INOK Investments have shown the need for more industrial and warehouse space. The industrial real estate market as a whole has been, and continues to be, in tight supply.

Final thoughts

With so many economic tailwinds in Tippecanoe County, and in Indiana in general, it is an exciting time to be a Hoosier. While the macro environment may dampen growth a bit, I believe Tippecanoe County is, and will remain, somewhat insulated from a broader slowdown.

Growing desirable employment opportunities, relatively affordable housing, good schools, strong local and state leadership, and high quality of life are sure to keep Tippecanoe County on an upward trajectory for years to come.

LOCATION OVERVIEW

As the community moves from good to great, the city serves as the county seat of Tippecanoe County, Indiana, United States. Located 60 miles northwest of Indianapolis and 125 miles southeast of Chicago. The core of the Lafayette metropolitan area includes Benton, Carroll, and Tippecanoe counties. West Lafayette, on the other side of the Wabash River, is home to Purdue University, which contributes significantly to all of the area's communities. The nearest commercial airport is Indianapolis International Airport (IND), located approximately 60 miles southeast of Lafayette. "Growth over the last decade has pushed Greater Lafayette into the national spotlight as an emerging hub for innovation in advanced Manufacturing in industries including medical, aerospace and defense, agriculture, nanotechnology, and a burgeoning housing market." In 2023, the Wall Street Journal and Realtor.com ranked Greater Lafayette as the "No.1 Housing Market in America" based on comparatively affordable housing, a skilled technology-based workforce, and a strong growing local economy (See REBusiness article, page 5).

The area, most known for Purdue University is one of the state's largest employers with 15,100 faculty and staff. Purdue University is one of the nation's leading land grant universities with a full range of academic majors and home to 40,000 students. The Purdue Polytechnic Institute is one of the 10 academic colleges at the university and provides a unique array of high-demand technology disciplines for bachelor's, master's and PhD degrees. The West Lafayette campus can be likened to a small city. Being part of the BIG10, the Purdue Boilermakers draw crowds to the athletic programs at the university. Along with Purdue University (in West Lafayette), Ivy Tech Community College of Indiana (3,600+ students) has a strong presence with its service area covering a ten-county region and offers over 40 programs. The main campus is located in Lafayette and sites are located in Crawfordsville and Frankfort.

Although the region is recognized by Purdue, the area also boasts an excellent employment base to further enhance its economic support. Evonik, one of the world's leading providers of drug delivery technologies, broke ground on its $220 million global-scale production facility for pharmaceutical lipids in Lafayette, Indiana. The investment into the lipid facility will help create a mix of both highly skilled and manufacturing jobs in the Greater Lafayette region. An additional 300 contractor positions will be added over the project life cycle. Production is scheduled to start in 2025. The Lafayette-based site is preferred due to its existing infrastructure, skilled workforce, and readily available technologies. Evonik currently employs nearly 680 people at its Tippecanoe site – plus an additional 150 contractors that assist with maintenance and logistics.

Additionally, Wabash National, the world's largest manufacturer of semi-truck trailers employs 6,500 people in Lafayette, while Subaru of Indiana Automotive Inc. (SIA), part of the Subaru family of companies, also employs more than 6,500 associates at the Indiana campus, who are committed to quality, safety and environmental stewardship. The Lafayette facility is home to the North American production for the Ascent, Crosstrek, Legacy and Outback models and is the only non-Japanese producer of Subaru vehicles. Caterpillar's Large Engine Center recently celebrated their 40th anniversary of the U.S.A. facility in Lafayette (2.5 miles from featured property) with more than 1,900 Caterpillar employees. The facility designs and manufactures Cat® 3500, 3600, and C175 engines. Landis+Gyr, manufacturer of electric meters for global ANSI markets employs around 7,800 talented people across five continents. Landis+Gyr acquired Duncan Electric Company of Lafayette years ago, making them a staple employer to the area. Primient, is a corn wet mill and refinery producing corn syrup and employs 1,900 employees in the city. IU Health Arnett Hospital supports the area's medical needs (5 miles) with its 191-beds serving more than 40 specialties, 23 outpatient clinics and 1,500 physicians.

Just a short commute to Indianapolis, the capital of the State of Indiana, largest city in the state, and the 15th largest in the U.S. according to the United States Census Bureau. Indianapolis anchors the 29th largest economic region in the U.S., based primarily on: finance, insurance, real estate ($30.7B), manufacturing ($30.1B), professional and business services ($14.3B), educational services, health care, and social assistance ($10.8B), and wholesale trade ($8.1B). Government, if it had been a private industry, would have ranked fifth, generating another $10.2 billion. The city has notable niche markets in amateur sports and auto racing. The city is home to three Fortune 500 companies - health insurance company Anthem Inc., pharmaceutical company Eli Lilly (11,000+ employees) and Simon Property Group, the largest real estate investment trust in the U.S. Columbus, Indiana-based Cummins opened its Global Distribution Headquarters in downtown Indianapolis in 2017. Other significant Indianapolis employers include: Brightpoint, Marsh Supermarkets and Finish Line and Republic Airways Holdings. Indianapolis is a prime center for logistics and distribution facilities, and it is home to a FedEx Express hub at the Indianapolis International Airport, trucking company Celadon, and distribution centers for companies such as Amazon.com, Foxconn, Finish Line, Inc., Fastenal, Target, and CVS Pharmacy. The U.S. headquarters of Roche Diagnostics, First Internet Bank of Indiana, Dow AgroSciences, Emmis Communications, Angle's List, and Allison Transmission, along with Indiana University Health, Sallie Mae, Cook Group, Rolls-Royce, Delta Faucet Company, Ice Miller, Raytheon, Carrier and General Motors calls Indianapolis home. The city also offers two major league sports clubs, four university campuses, and several museums, including the world's largest children's museum. Among the city's historic sites and districts, Indianapolis is home to the largest collection of monuments dedicated to veterans and war casualties in the U.

Indianapolis hosts several notable sporting events annually, including the NCAA basketball tournament, NCAA Football Big 10 Championship, Brickyard 400, Grand Prix of Indianapolis, NFL Scouting Combine, the largest half marathon in the U.S., and the largest single-day sporting event in the world, the Indianapolis 500. Visitors are drawn from all over the globe to enjoy top-notch professional sports venues, a thriving convention industry and numerous cultural attractions.

Calm Waters Float Therapy was born from a need of floating with out driving hours to find a float tank. The sanctuary that is found in water can be calming to so many. Calm Waters saw a need in the community for a place to turn inwards and find retreat from the constant go, go, go of daily jammed packed schedules. With a deep love for water, and a desire to provide an alternative form of recovery from the physical, mental, and emotional demands of daily life, Calm Waters was born. The float pods are large pods filled with a 10 inches of standing water. The water is heated to 94 degrees Fahrenheit and has about 1,000 lbs of magnesium sulfate (epsom salt) poured in. People use float therapy as a form of meditation, chronic pain management, alleviate symptoms of depression and anxiety, and so much more!
