- Politically liberal
- R&B music
- Status-seekers
- Tech-savvy
- Social media fans

Suburban Nightlife consist of well-off households living in suburban comfort. Typically found outside large cities in the South and Mid-Atlantic states, these households contain a mix of middle-aged couples, families and divorced individuals. Many of the adults are college-educated, holding solid blue-collar jobs that provide household incomes of around $65,000. With most owning older, modestly priced homes, they have substantial disposable income of around $14,000 per year that allows them to spend their free time attending football and listening to music.

As consumers, Suburban Nightlife are striving to pursue the good life in a smart way. They like to follow the latest fashion trends and don't mind paying extra for quality goods and to remain on the cutting-edge in regards to both technology and their social and professional status. Shoppers in this segment tend to frequent discount department stores like T.J. Maxx and Family Dollar, looking to maximize their spending dollars. However, they remain a receptive audience for advertising—to better discover the latest styles—and are a strong audience for a wide variety of ad vehicles. Radio, TV, and direct mail are all effective channels for reaching this segment.
