Southwest Florida, including areas like North Fort Myers, is among the fastest-growing regions in the U.S., and that means higher demand for medical services. Healthcare systems are expanding accordingly. The U.S. population is aging, especially in places like Florida, where many retirees live; older adults use healthcare services more frequently, increasing demand for medical care.

The medical office buildings (MOBs) market is projected to grow significantly, with estimates valuing it at around $62 billion by 2030 due to increased demand for outpatient and specialty services.

Advances in medicine allow many procedures and consultations to happen outside of hospitals, making medical offices essential for cost-effective care. Doctors are needed to keep up with population growth and preventive care.

Clinics and health centers often seek family medicine or internal medicine physicians to serve all ages.
