COLORFUL history

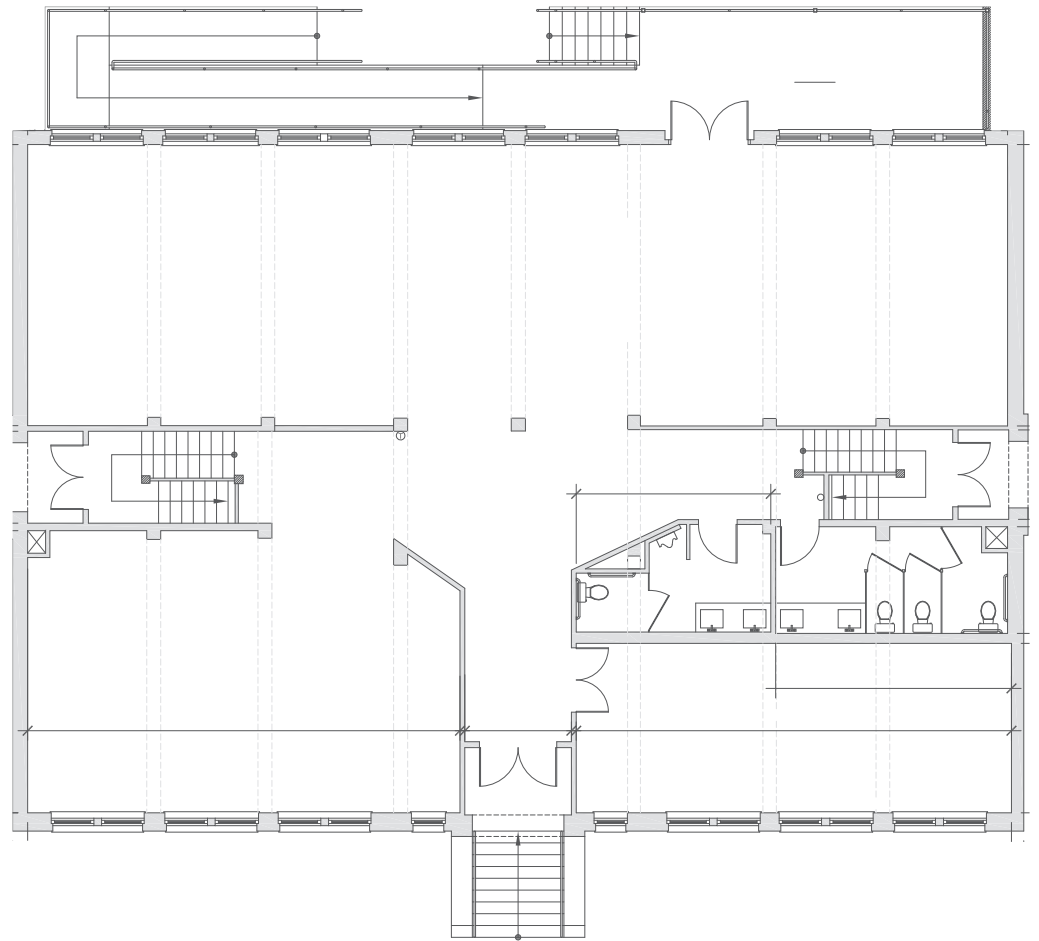

Located in West Dallas, Eagle Ford School was built in 1924 in Gothic Revival style. It served elementary and middle school age Anglo and Mexican American children from the southern areas of Eagle Ford, Trinity Portland Cement Company residential villages, Arcadia Park, and surrounding rural areas.

It is rare that an almost 100-year-old building in a rural setting still retains such strong, diverse associations today. This community helped to shape and build the City of Dallas we know today.
