PERMIAN BASIN OIL PLAY

The Permian Basin is one of the strongest oil fields in the world. It produces 40% of the oil and 15% of the natural gas that is consumed in the US. It is an oil-and-gas rich geologic formation located in West Texas and the adjoining area of southeastern New Mexico. It covers an area approximately 250 miles wide and 300 miles long. Many productive mineral layers lie across the region and range in depth from a few hundred feet to 5 miles under the surface. The Permian Basin currently produces an annual average of 5 million barrels of oil per day. It has produced over 30 billion barrels of oil and 75 trillion cubic feet of gas, and it is estimated by industry experts to contain recoverable oil and natural gas resources exceeding what has been produced over the last 90 years.

Recent use of enhanced-recovery practices such as hydraulic fracturing (fracking) in the Permian Basin has produced a substantial impact on U.S. oil production. Since 2005 the number of rigs in the Permian basin has more than tripled as oil companies capitalize on the sound and profitable economics of local energy production. In May 2013, more than 30,000 Texans were working directly within the Permian Basin oilfields.
