Location

Vineyard

Derbyshire Vineyard is positioned in the SLO Coast AVA, one of California's newest appellations spanning 80 miles of coastline and running from Ragged Point to Nipomo, bordered on the east by the Santa Lucia Mountain range. A vast majority of the appellation (97%) lies within six miles of the Pacific Coast. The close proximity to the coast affords a moderate but cool climate and an exceptionally long growing season.

Derbyshire Vineyard sits in the northern portion of the SLO Coast AVA, where the soils are derived from sandstone, shale, and sedimentary rock. These soils are older and contain high mineral content while also being thin and rocky on the hills, with deep clay loam on the flats.

The 72±-acre Derbyshire Vineyard consists of over 89,500 vines planted in Pinot Noir, Pinot Gris, Pinot Meunier, Syrah and Chardonnay. Pinot Noir comprises the majority with 52.5± acres. Pinot Gris is next with 8.7± acres, followed by Chardonnay with 7.6± acres and the balance of varieties with 1± and 2± acres.

Over the last three years, the vineyard has produced an average of 62± tons per year. The grapes are utilized by the owners to produce their own wines and sold to local high-end producers.

Water

Derbyshire water is supplied via one well producing 120± gallons per minute. Water is pumped from the well to four, hilltop storage tanks. Water is then distributed for domestic and vineyard use.

The vineyard is drip irrigated, water for which is gravity fed from the hilltop storage tanks.

There are four additional wells that exist on the property, one of which is capped. The other three wells are unimproved and have not been utilized by the current owners.

There are also three springs. Water from two of the springs is captured in two 5,000 gallon water tanks and utilized for landscape irrigation. Water from the third spring feeds a cattle trough utilized for grazing.

Furthermore, there are three seasonal creeks which provide water for the cattle and wildlife.
