

A white network switch or patch panel mounted on the blue wall, with several ports visible on its sides. A blue Ethernet cable is plugged into one of the ports and runs down towards the desk.

A black, three-tiered hanging storage unit mounted on the blue wall, likely for holding folders or documents.

A dark wood desk with a flat top and a set of three drawers on the right side. On the desk, there is a black office phone, a laptop, a power strip, and several loose cables. A cardboard box is visible under the desk on the left side.

A yellow cleaning cart on wheels, featuring a black handle and a bucket. The brand name 'BRIGHTON' is printed on the side. It is positioned in the corner of the cubicle near a window.

An open doorway leading to an adjacent room. The room beyond has white walls, a window, and a white folding chair. The floor in the adjacent room appears to be a different material, possibly tile or linoleum.