MARKET OVERVIEW

Located in the northeastern part of Seattle, Maple Leaf is a residential neighborhood known for its quiet, tree-lined streets, and family-friendly community. The neighborhood is bordered by Interstate 5 to the west and is close to several major roads making other parts of Seattle easily accessible.

The median household income in Maple Leaf is higher than the overall median household income in Seattle, and home prices for homes in Maple Leaf are slightly higher than the city average (Feb 2025).

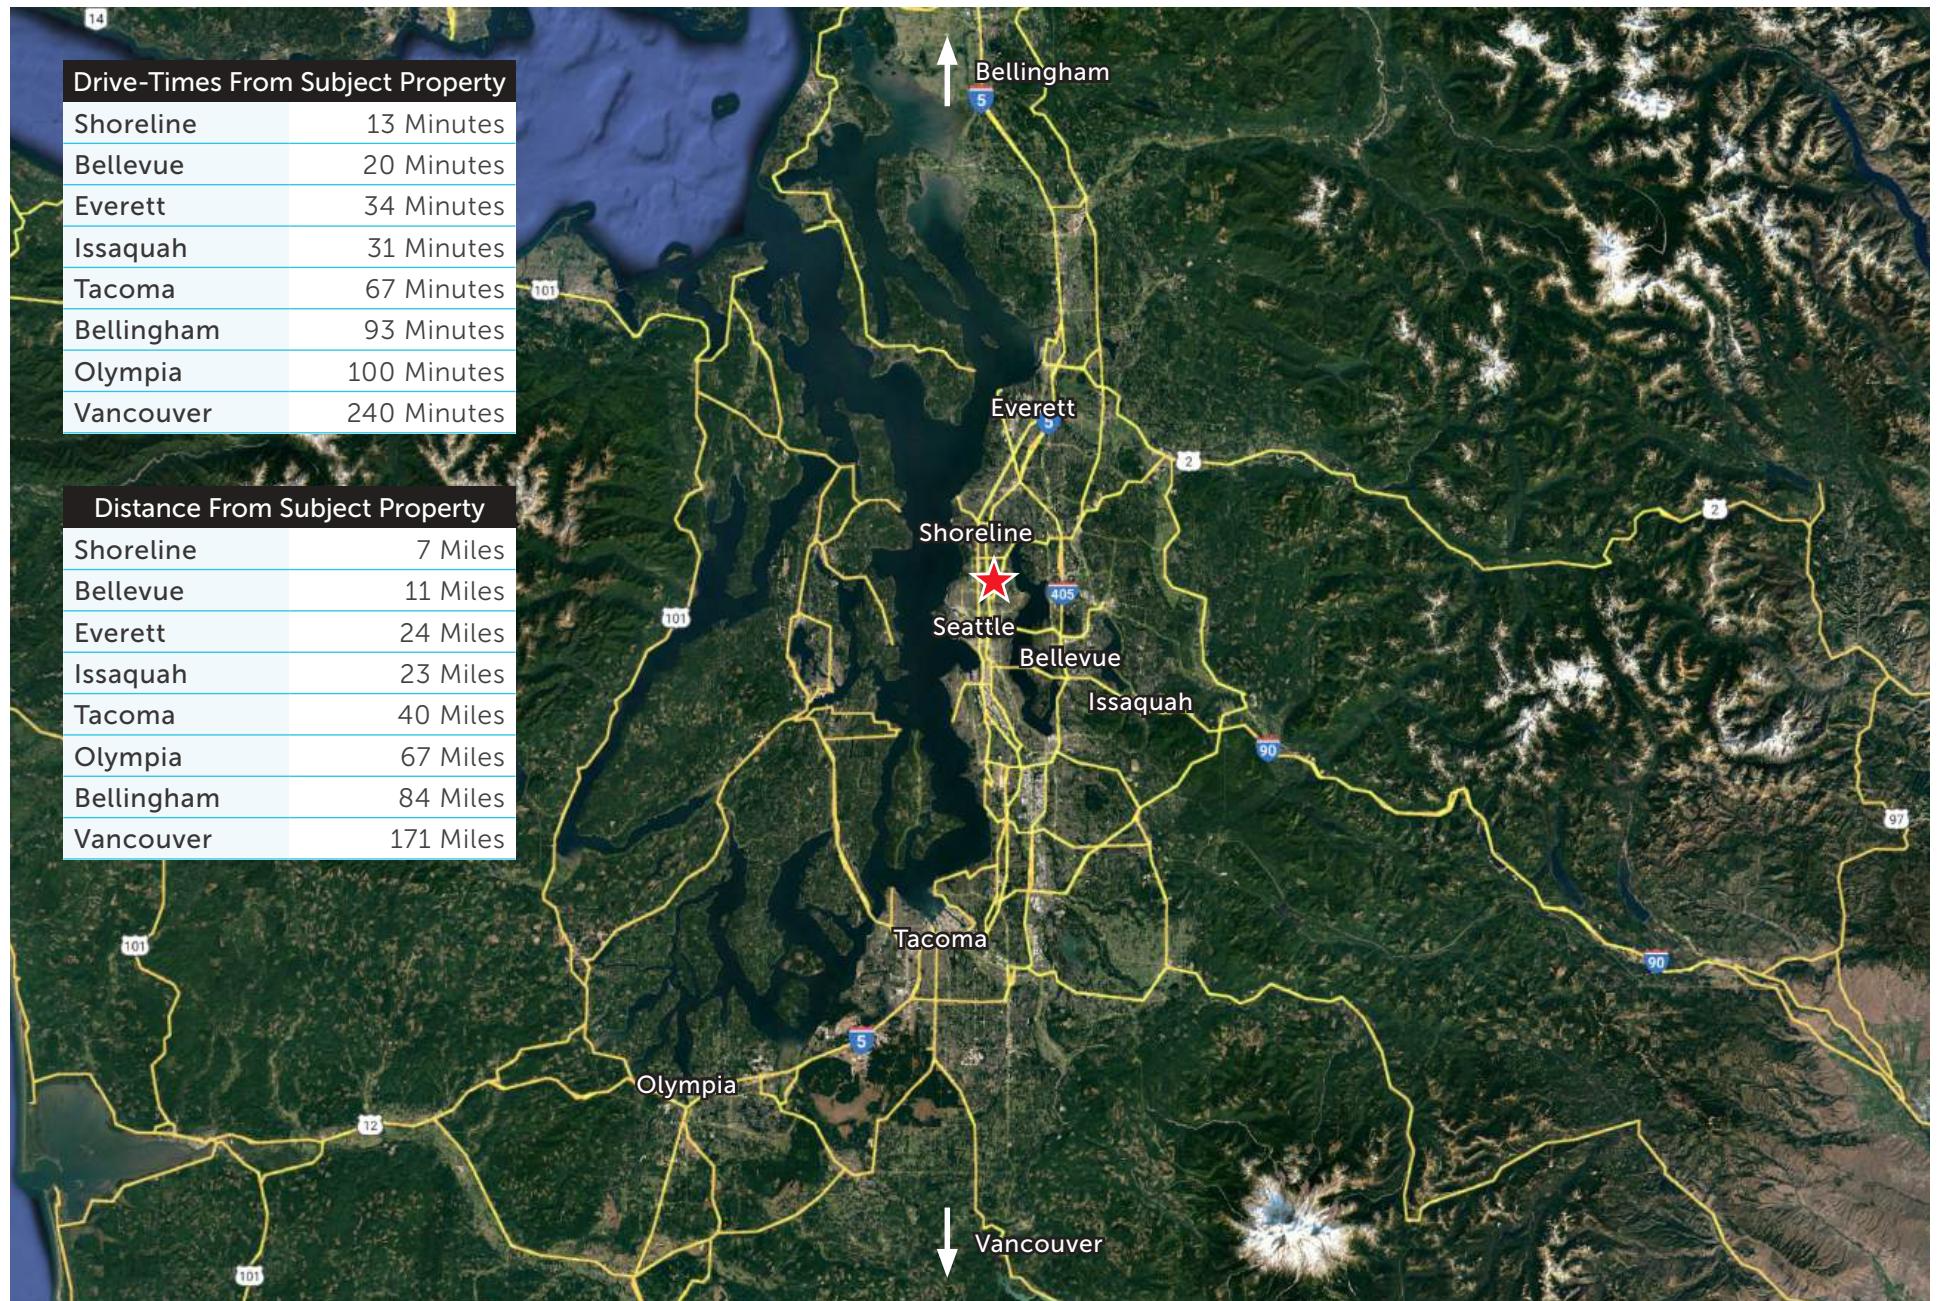

The area offers an urban feel and is home to several restaurants, bars, and cafes, including the Northgate Mall and Maple Leaf Grill. It is a tight-knit community made up of mostly bungalow-style and Tudor homes with many conveniences nearby, making it a top choice for young professionals and families. The area also boasts an abundance of parks and outdoor spaces. One of the most notable is the Maple Leaf Reservoir Park, which has trails, gardens, athletic fields, and a children's play area. The neighborhood is also home to the sprawling Thornton Creek Park and offers easy access to the Burke-Gilman Trail.

Maple Leaf offers a quiet retreat from the city, but also gives residents a convenient home base, allowing them to explore all parts of Seattle. There are ample parks and outdoor areas, close by amenities, and proximity and easy access to some of Seattle's most popular attractions.
