ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

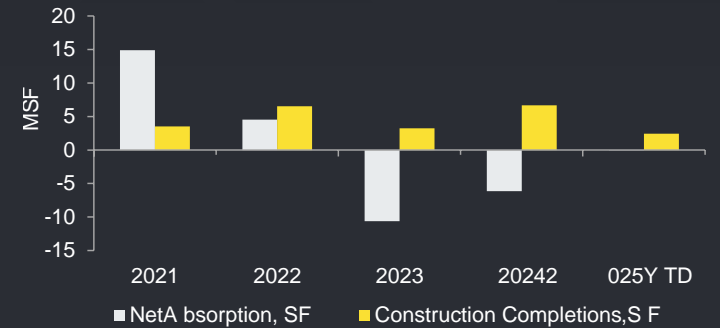

Los Angeles (LA) County's job market recorded mild improvements between May 2024 and May 2025, with total nonfarm employment increasing by 21,800 jobs, a 0.5% year-over-year (YOY) increase. The unemployment rate remained unchanged from April 2025 to May 2025, settling at 5.4% and is 40 basis points (bps) below the quarterly average of 5.8%.¹ Employment growth in private education and health services continued to bolster the labor market. The sector added 49,200 jobs (+5.1%) YOY, with healthcare and social assistance accounting for most of the gains. The government sector also reported positive momentum, expanding by 10,500 jobs (+1.8%) YOY, largely due to hiring at the local and state levels. Industrial-using sectors, however, faced stronger headwinds. The manufacturing sector recorded employment losses of 14,600 jobs (-4.7%) YOY. The wholesale trade sector lost 4,400 jobs (-2.1%) YOY and retail lost 1,100 jobs (-0.3%) YOY, yet the transportation and warehousing sector added 2,900 jobs (+1.3%) YOY. All employment sectors in LA County are projected to grow at a combined growth rate of 0.9% in 2025 and 0.7% in 2026 compared to the five-year historical average of 0.0%.²

Meanwhile, the Ports of Los Angeles (4.1 million) and Long Beach (4.0 million), often seen as bellwethers of economic momentum, handled a combined 8.1 million Twenty-Foot Equivalent Units (TEUs) through May 2025, a 10.2% YOY increase and a 19.5% jump from pre-pandemic 2019 levels.³ This surge was driven by a strong Q1 2025 as importers were front loading shipments to avoid potential U.S. tariffs. However, the lagging effects of the tariffs due to transit time started to be felt in May as TEU volumes dropped 20.7% from April 2025 and 6.4% from May 2024, the first YOY decrease in TEU volumes over the last 12 months.

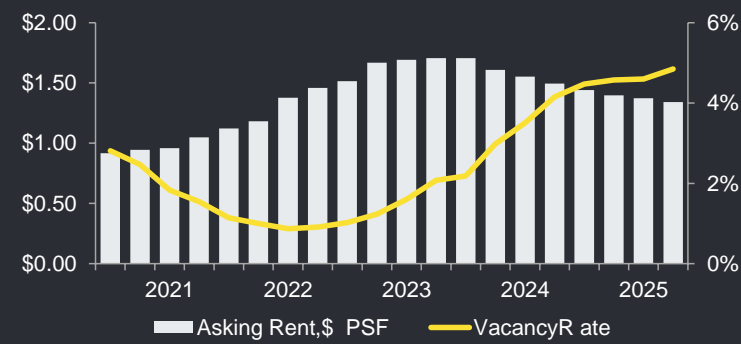

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

Vacancy has been on the rise in LA's industrial market. In Q2 2025, the overall vacancy rate climbed to 4.8%, up 20 bps quarter-over-quarter (QOQ) and 70 bps YOY, the highest level seen in the past decade. Negative net absorption was reported this quarter after being positive for the previous two quarters. Vacancy rates increased QOQ in four of the six major submarkets, with the exceptions being the San Gabriel Valley (SGV) and LA West. Mid-Counties, LA Central and LA South all reported vacancies over 5.0%, driving up the overall market.
