ABOUT ASU

FOR SALE

ASU Arizona State University

SUMMARY:

Arizona State University (ASU), the largest public university in the U.S. with over 145,000 students, serves as a major economic engine in Arizona—contributing more than $6.1 billion annually to the state's GDP. Its Tempe campus alone houses tens of thousands of students, driving high demand for nearby housing. Multifamily developers benefit from this demand, as well as the university's broader ecosystem, which includes innovation hubs like the Novus Innovation Corridor and SkySong that attract tech companies and retain graduates in the area. With over 306,000 ASU alumni working in Arizona and earning $24.1 billion annually, there's strong, sustained demand not just from students, but also from a growing, skilled workforce. The university's ongoing infrastructure expansions and new housing projects highlight a supportive environment for real estate investment, especially in walkable areas adjacent to campus.

- High Demand for Student Housing: With a substantial student population, especially in Tempe, there's a continuous need for quality housing.
- Economic Growth and Stability: ASU's significant economic contributions, including $6.1 billion to the state's GDP and the creation of nearly 56,000 jobs, underscore its role as a stable economic anchor
- Infrastructure and Development Support: ASU's expansion and infrastructure projects, including new residence halls and campus facilities, indicate a commitment to accommodating growth
